

Deputies Give Slim Margin to French Premier On His Policies

Daladier Wins Despite Socialists, Communists

HEATED DEBATE

Chamber President Leaves Room During Arguments

Paris—(AP)—A slim majority of 74 votes among the chamber of deputies 618 members today gave Premier Daladier's government a new lease on life to carry on its economic program and resistance to Italy's colonial ambitions.

After a riotous session, in which Chamber President Edouard Herriot twice put on his hat and stalked out until oratorical storms abated, Daladier won a vote of confidence over the solid opposition of socialists and communists.

Some of his own radical-socialists joined the opposition, which formerly supported him in the people's front.

The attention of delegates to the eighth Pan-American conference at Lima, Peru, was turned to United States Secretary of State Cordell Hull and the foreign ministers of Argentina and Peru for speeches charting a course for the Americas.

Against Formal Pacts

Argentine Foreign Minister Jose Maria Cantillo's speech was awaited with particular interest because Argentina, tied traditionally to Britain, has indicated opposition to any formal pacts for continental defense.

Two projects already have been submitted for consideration—the first, by Cuba, condemning racial persecution, and the second by Argentina, advocating regular consultations among American foreign ministers.

From the more moderate tone of anti-French articles in the fascist press and the absence of new street demonstrations Italy's unofficial campaign for her "aspirations" in Tunisia seemed to be slackening.

Anti-Italian demonstrations, however, spread westward from Tunisia to Algeria in France's Arab empire as French troops strengthened their guard on the Tunisian frontier facing Italian Libya.

Problem Solved

Joseph P. Kennedy, United States ambassador to Great Britain, sailing for a vacation in the United States, declared "you can stop worrying about where to put the refugees now. That problem has been solved." The most pressing need, he said, was "cooperation for an international loan and, above all, a little cooperation from Hitler."

Huge illustrated posters appeared on Nazi precinct headquarters in Berlin depicting British soldiers firing on Arabs and destroying Arab villages and complaining: "World conscience is asleep when England's soldiers mow down Arabs with their guns, but is awake when a few windows of Jewish junk shops and synagogues are smashed in Germany."

In Spain, where war fronts have been silent for more than a week, both sides apparently were preparing new offensives—the insurgents in the northeast and the government in south and central Spain.

Chinese resistance against a Japanese drive in Hunan province, strengthening notably in a week's fighting, continued. A fleet of 20 Japanese motor launches, however, penetrated Lake Tungting, China's largest, for the first time and attempted to make a landing at Lukoshih, 20 miles south of Yochow.

RAPS 'INSANITY'

Demanding a slash in federal spending, Senator Byrd (D-Va.) declared the nation was suffering from "nine years of fiscal insanity." He estimated the "actual public debt" by next July would approach $50,000,000,000.

Senator Byrd in Bitter Attack on 'Fiscal Insanity'

Says New Deal Won't Offer 'Leadership for Economy'

Boston—(AP)—Declaring the nation was suffering from "nine years of fiscal insanity," Senator Byrd (D-Va.) today demanded a slash in federal spending and added the nation could expect no "leadership from the present administration for economy and retrenchment."

Climaxing the annual meeting of Massachusetts Federation of Taxpayers' associations, Byrd asserted "good government and liberal government would be vastly promoted if the brain-trusters from Tugwell to Corcoran would go home, and if congress resumed its constitutional duty."

Byrd centered part of his sharp attack on Chairman Marriner S. Eccles' economic philosophy dominated the administration's fiscal policies, no "sane budget policy can be hoped for." Referring further to Eccles, Byrd said:

"The more you borrow and spend, the more prosperous you are; the more taxes you pay, the more prosperous you are, says Mr. Eccles. This incredible statement was made by the head of our national banking system in New York last week and indicates to what depths of false reasoning we have sunk in the crack-pot legislative ideas of those holding important positions."

The senator estimated the "direct" public debt would be $41,000,000 by next July, and that, if the bonds, debentures and notes of various federal agencies were added in, the "actual debt" would approach $50,000,000,000.

Ammon Seeks Source Of Circular Urging Boycott on Butter

Madison—(AP)—Ralph Ammon, director of the state department of agriculture and markets was investigating today to determine the source of an anonymous circular mailed from Madison to points in Wisconsin and Illinois, asking housewives not to buy butter.

The circular, printed on plain paper and mailed in envelopes which bore no mark of identification, charged the existence of a "butter monopoly" and urged housewives to join in a general boycott.

Ammon said he had not seen a copy of the circular but had reports from persons in Madison, Milwaukee and Chicago who received copies. He said the information available to him indicates a large number of the circulars were sent out.

Ammon conferred today with Walter Hyland, Madison postmaster, asking the postal authorities to assist in the investigation. Hyland declined to comment and deferred all questions to Ammon.

Al Capone Scheduled to Leave Alcatraz in Middle of January

Chicago—(AP)—Al Capone is coming back next month but not to the Chicago he left in 1932 to serve a 10-year federal prison term for income tax evasion.

The scar-faced Capone, one-time undisputed ruler of Chicago's gangland empire, is scheduled to leave Alcatraz in San Francisco bay Jan. 19, 1939.

There is, however, a year's sentence in Cook county jail before he will be a free man. Then? "He'll come out a law-abiding citizen," aver his attorneys.

State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney's staff declined comment on its intentions, but Courtney's men have been busy the last several months putting the ax to the bookie gambling houses controlled by "the syndicate" and reputedly directed by some of Al's surviving associates on the "public enemy" lists of the city.

The group has been little in the public eye as individuals of late.

Fight Enemies Of Democracy, Eden's Appeal

Britain in Attack on 'New Form of Idolatry, Worship of State'

FOR UNITED ACTION

Thinks Britain and U. S. Must Stand Together Against Dictators

New York—(AP)—Anthony Eden, trim former foreign secretary of Great Britain, spoke out emphatically last night for the preservation of the democracy which "we in England and you in America cherish most," and saw as the greatest threat to that democracy "a new form of idolatry, the worship of the state."

Eden's address to the National Association of Manufacturers was a ringing defense of democracy as "a university in which we learn from one another. It can never be a barracks where blind obedience is the first essential."

"It would indeed be the greatest irony in human history," he told the 4,000 persons at the banquet and a nationwide radio audience, "if mankind were to allow all progress to be stifled by the setting up" of this "worship of the state to which all men must bow down, and to which they must sacrifice their freedom of faith, of speech, of worship."

"Man was not, in our view, made for the state. The state was made for man," he said.

Pleads for Unity

The British statesman, who resigned his cabinet post in a difference of opinion with Prime Minister Chamberlain over policies toward dictators, stressed that Great Britain and the United States must stand firm together against the enemies of democracy and "we are acutely conscious of the need to defend ourselves."

A dramatic and spectacular race against time and weather preceded Eden's arrival in New York. The liner Aquitania, which Eden and his party boarded a week ago, was delayed by fog and storms at sea. A special cutter went down a rain-drenched bay, to meet the ship and carried Eden to the Bat-

Defeat Predicted On Reorganization

Some Senators Think Any New Measure Will Be Voted Down

Washington—(AP)—Some of the senators who opposed the administration's reorganization bill in the last congress predicted today the defeat of any new proposal to give President Roosevelt a free hand to reshuffle federal bureaus.

The president told a press conference yesterday he would recommend to the new congress enactment of a reorganization bill, but said he had no idea whether there would be any fundamental changes from the measure which evoked a heated controversy last session.

In that connection Mr. Roosevelt commented that everyone agrees the government's administrative machinery should be made more efficient.

Senator McNary (R-Ore.), the minority leader, echoed this view, but added:

"Everyone is for reorganization if it will promote the efficiency of government and reduce the cost thereof. Everyone is willing to give the president power to abolish offices and bureaus and transfer and amalgamate the functions of bureaus."

"But in my opinion the majority of congress wants to have some control over arbitrary decisions by the president."

On the administration side of the argument, Senator Norris (D-Neb.) asserted it would be a "futile" reorganization bill which gave congress the power to review presidential decisions.

"In reshaping the bureaus," Norris said, "the president will have to step on a lot of toes. He will have to step on the bureaus themselves and on the members of congress who have pet bureaus."

Continue Hunt for Two Bodies in Lake Como

Lake Geneva, Wis.—(AP)—Deputies continued to drag Lake Como today in an attempt to recover the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hirschmann, Villa Park, Ill., who apparently drowned while on a fishing trip three weeks ago.

Their boat was found overturned, and the body of their dog, seen with them in the boat the day of the accident, was recovered recently from the water.

Coroner William Best said the dog's vital organs had been sent to Madison for a toxicological examination after Dr. T. H. Ferguson, a veterinarian, reported the animal had not drowned. Best said the dog, a Kerry blue terrier, was of a breed which ordinarily is an excellent swimmer and not apt to drown.

He said there was no evidence the couple had met with foul play.

NEAR DEATH

Springfield, Mo.—(AP)—Gaston R. Means, perpetrator of a cruel Lindbergh ransom hoax, remained in a "critical, unchanged condition" at the federal medical center here today.

Dr. M. R. King, warden, said Means is near death of a heart ailment aggravated by a gall bladder operation Tuesday. Means is serving a 16-year sentence for defrauding Mrs. Evelyn Walsh McLean of Washington, D. C., of $104,000 in her efforts to ransom the kidnapped and murdered Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

Two Congressmen Charge Utilities Resemble Fascism

Private Concerns 'Powerful and Corrupt,' One Says at Hearing

Washington—(AP)—Two members of congress compared private utilities with fascism before the TVA investigation committee today.

Senator Schwartz (D-Wyo.), a committee member, and Representative Rankin (D-Miss.), staunch TVA advocate, who appeared as a witness, said there was a similarity.

Rankin, co-author of the TVA act, was testifying on TVA benefits when Schwartz interrupted to observe that some persons had suggested the TVA program "was socialist."

"I wonder if the integration of private utilities is not a form of fascism?" the western senator asked.

"It is the most powerful and corrupt influence ever organized in a civilized country," Rankin replied, nodding assent.

Launched Attack

"I've heard a lot of agitation recently about railroads and boatmen, communists in this country," Schwartz said. "I have not heard a word about fascists."

Launching into a broad attack on the utility industry, Rankin said his leaders had "attempted to intimidate the courts."

"They have bribed legislators directly and indirectly," he added. "They have attempted to intimidate the press in some sections. They have even tried to influence the churches."

Asserting that present utility rates were more than $1,000,000,000 above necessary levels, Rankin said "it's no wonder they have even tried to write school textbooks in the past."

Senator Donahue (D-Ohio), committee chairman who seldom comments at hearings, broke in to say that "public utilities in my state, Ohio, have collected more from the people than all of the combined taxes."

Army and Navy Busy With Mobilization Plan for 'Next War'

Washington—(AP)—The army and navy are revising their scheme to mobilize the entire nation in the "next war."

Disclosing this today, informed officials said the new blueprints would be simpler than the existing detailed proposal for highly centralized control of the national economy in war-time. The simplification, it was indicated, will be aimed partly at shortening the time it would require to put this plan in operation.

The present plan calls for governmental control of factories, prices, food, fuel, power, transportation and labor, tighter even than in the World war.

The revision, details of which have not been disclosed, will bring up-to-date a plan gradually developed since 1920 and approved three years ago by Secretaries Woodring and Swanson.

Eight Cars of Train Derailed In Ohio Wreck

Three Women Passengers Taken to Hospital With Injuries

CAUSE NOT KNOWN

Many Helped Through Windows When Cars Sink Into Mud

Defiance, Ohio—(AP)—The Baltimore and Ohio railroad's east-bound Fort Pitt limited left the rails near here early today, causing injuries sufficiently severe to require hospital treatment for three women.

Many other passengers were treated for minor cuts and bruises at the scene of the accident near Holgate, 10 miles east of here.

The women were brought to a Defiance hospital by ambulance. Attendants said their condition was not serious.

R. M. Shaw, who drove the ambulance to the wreck reported eight of the train's ten coaches were derailed. Some of these, he said, plunged deep into mud at the base of embankments.

The ambulance operator said two engines which drew the limited remained on the tracks.

"The steel cars sank almost five feet in the mud and many passengers were helped out through windows," Shaw said.

Nearly all passengers were taken to Defiance, about 25 miles east of here, and there boarded another east-bound train, Shaw said.

Cause Undetermined

At Akron, Division Superintendent W. C. Baker said the cause of the derailment had not been determined. A spokesman said main line traffic was being rerouted.

Those treated here were Mrs. James Knowell, 40, of St. Paul, Minn., Mrs. Michael Shaughnessy of Willard, Ohio, and Mrs. Helen Rowland, 42, of Chicago. Mrs. Rowland was released a few hours later.

Mrs. Knowell and Mrs. Shaughnessy suffered severe cuts. The latter, like many other women passengers, had to be liberated from one of the overturned cars through a shattered window.

Estimates of the number of passengers on the train varied from 100 to 125. Physicians said all of them were shaken up pretty badly.

Much Confusion

Trainmen expressed belief the tender behind the second of two locomotives were derailed, causing the cars to leave the rails.

Mrs. Shaughnessy's husband, a retired railroad, said:

"It was the worst wreck I've ever seen. There was lots of confusion. Women were screaming and passengers were jammed between the seats as the lights went out and the coaches rolled over. 'Men and women were in their night clothes.'"

Fires were built along the railroad right-of-way to warn the shivering passengers before they were taken to nearby towns.

Roy McKinley of Garrett, Ind., was the conductor.

Steals $500 From His Uncle; Sent to Prison

Balsam Lake, Wis.—(AP)—The mystery of Herman Hawkins' missing $500, which disappeared from a cache in his grain bin, has been solved.

Judge W. R. Foley sentenced Leslie Hawkins, Herman's nephew, to serve a year to 13 months in state prison on a larceny charge in connection with the theft.

Hawkins, who had been saving the money for taxes, shovelled 100 bushels of grain back and forth for days in search of the money before he was convinced he had been robbed. Once he suspected mice.

Wounded Farmer Faces Grilling on Slaying

Jacksonville, Ill.—(AP)—A coroner's jury recommended today Joe farmer who yesterday fatally shot state fire marshal Sherman V. Coulter, be held to await grand jury action.

Burneister himself hovered near death in a hospital, unconscious from shotgun wounds in the head admittedly inflicted by Oliver Coville, father of the slain man. The fire marshal died last night about eight hours after the shooting.

At the close of the inquest, Coroner E. O. Samples instructed Sheriff A. E. Williamson to draw up a warrant and serve it on the wounded man at the first opportunity.

Coalition Aim Of G.O.P. Heads At State Meet

Social Security Council to Urge Drastic Changes

Would Provide Payments To Dependents of Workers Under Law

Washington—(AP)—The social security advisory council drafted today sweeping recommendations for broadening the government's old age insurance system.

While the council's official report will not be made public until sometime next week, informed persons said its principal recommendations would include:

1. Provision for monthly payments to the widows and dependent children of workers covered by the social security act and for $200 funeral expenses to the families of "covered" workers who die before reaching the age of 65.

2. Some provision for the wives and dependent children of those over 65 receiving monthly payments. (This would be designed to aid the families of retired workers whose incomes under the system may be only $30 or $40 a month—too small to provide the necessities of life for more than one person.)

Would Advance Date

3. Move the date for beginning old age payments up from Jan. 1, 1942, to Jan. 1, 1940.

4. Broaden the act to include immediately, 2,600,000 seamen and workers in banks, charitable and religious organizations.

5. Broaden the act later to include, probably in 1941, an estimated 6,000,000 farm and domestic workers.

6. Provide that payments to married men (over 65) be $10 more a month than those to single men. (Thus the top limit for married men would be $85 a month and the bottom $20. The limits for single men would be $75 and $10.)

Kentucky Miner Is Found Slain

Body Found on Roadside; Victim Was Facing Murder Charge

Harlan, Ky.—(AP)—The bullet-riddled body of Chris Patterson, 35, pug-legged coal miner, was found on the roadside six miles from here early today.

Patterson was under $5,000 bond on a charge of murder for the roadside killing of Frank White, 35, former Harlan deputy sheriff, July 6.

Chad Nolan, chief deputy sheriff, said there were eight bullet wounds in the miner's body and expressed the opinion Patterson had been killed elsewhere and his body dumped in a snow-heap along the road.

Patterson was subpoenaed by the government in the Harlan anti-labor conspiracy trials at London last spring but never was called to testify. White was a defendant in the trials.

At London, Sheriff Fred W. Lucas said Patterson was bound over to the February term of Laurel circuit court on a charge of murder under $5,000 bond.

White was shot as he stood on the front porch of a roadside near the Laurel-Whitley county line.

Discover Body of Man Wearing Woman's Attire

Galesburg, Ill.—(AP)—The body of Gale Davison, wearing a brown wig and completely attired in women's clothing, was found hanging from a small tree on the outskirts of Galesburg today.

His hands were handcuffed behind him and the body was suspended by a cheap dog chain.

The victim was identified by Fritz McCaleb, a clothing salesman, police said. Davison, who was about 26, had been a railroad brakeman until about a year ago. Since then, he had been employed at odd jobs, police said.

Republicans to Turn Guns on Reorganization Program

EARLY ON LIST

Hope for Democratic Support in Both Houses At Madison

Stevens Point—(AP)—The first target of the 1939 legislature, its Republican members decided in conference here yesterday, will be the state reorganization plan authored by governor Philip F. LaFollette last year.

The caucus of 57 of the 69 Republicans elected to the legislature make a bid for continuation of the Democratic-Republican legislative coalition in organization of both houses, and then trained its sights on the reorganization bill.

Legislators leaving after the conference predicted the incoming legislature, which convenes Jan. 11, would take up reorganization in the first week of the session.

Senator Kenneth White of River Falls, and Assemblymen Vernon Thomson of Richland Center, and Milton Murray of Milwaukee, were appointed on a committee to make recommendations regarding the controversial measure.

"Contract" Group

The conference named a "contract" committee to confer with Democrats to make certain the joint control which the political observers have foreseen since the election.

Named on this committee were Senators E. J. Roethe of Fennimore, Maurice Cockley of Beloit, and Mike Mack of Shiocton, and assemblymen Mark Catlin, Jr., of Appleton, Alfred Ludvigsen of Hartland, and Julius Spearbreaker of Clintonville.

Although pre-conference discussions had centered about consideration of a speaker of the house and a president pro tem of the senate, these matters were not acted upon. They were laid over until a later caucus, probably Jan. 10 at Madison, after the G. O. P. committee has had a chance to contact the Democrats.

Catlin Secretary

Senator Roethe was elected chairman of the conference and will serve in that capacity at the later meeting. Senator Cockley was chosen vice chairman and Assemblyman Catlin secretary.

The bid for Democratic support was anticipated in view of the strategic position of the six Democratic state senators. While the Republicans hold a majority in the assembly, they have only 16 of 33 seats in the senate, and G. O. P. senators are ill. They are Oscar Morris of Milwaukee, and Fred Fisher of Waupaca.

Republicans must have the Democratic votes on their side to control the senate. The G. O. P.-Democratic coalition in that house remained solid throughout the 1937 session in opposition to the Progressives.

Discuss Rulings

The caucus also discussed the many disputes over rules in the last session, particularly the rulings of former Lieutenant Governor Henry A. Gunderson and Speaker Paul Alfonsi. Progressives, the Republicans expressed a desire to make sure certain rulings would not become precedent, and named a committee to study them. Chosen were Senators Conrad Shearer of Kenosha, Cockley and Roethe, Assemblymen Frank Graess of Sturgeon Bay, Arthur Hinz of Ribon, Reuben W. Peterson of Berlin, Catlin and Thomson.

Peterson's name was mentioned frequently in conversations about the speakership. Two Democrats received consideration in informal discussion of possible chief clerks. Lawrence R. Laisen, Racine Democrat who has served three sessions as clerk of the senate, and John Slocum, Wausau Democrat who formerly was chief clerk of the assembly, were mentioned for these posts.

Attends Banquet at Cheese Center

Fails to Find Cheese

Plymouth, Wis.—(AP)—B. E. Sackett, agent in charge of the Milwaukee office of the federal bureau of investigation came to this cheese center for a banquet speech last night—and was he surprised.

He began his address by relating that he had sampled many foods in localities famous for these products—apple syrup at Rutland, Vt.; ham at Smithfield, Va.; strawberries at Monett, Mo., and cactus candy at Arizona.

"I told my wife today that I was going to the cheese center of the nation and no doubt they would have cheese piled high at the banquet and even serve it with ice cream," he said.

"I come here and there isn't even a piece on the table."

The Plymouth hosts said it wouldn't happen again.

Farmers Voting On Crop Control By Government

Congress Expected to be Guided by Results Of Election

Washington — (P) — The issue of governmental control as opposed to unlimited production confronted growers of three major crops today.

In 19 states, stretching from the south Atlantic to the Pacific, growers of cotton, rice and flue-cured tobacco gathered at rural school houses, court houses and other public buildings to cast secret ballots on proposals that the AAA be given power to limit their sales in 1939.

Officials estimated that upwards of 2,500,000 farmers were eligible to vote.

Administration leaders watched the balloting closely, for they conceded that the fate of the present crop control law at the forthcoming session of congress might hinge on the results.

The producers were asked whether they favored invoking quota provisions of the farm act to prevent accumulation of additional price-depressing surpluses.

If two-thirds of the growers voting cast affirmative ballots, on each crop, all producers will be limited. Those overproducing would be subject to penalty taxes.

The referendum followed a vigorous campaign between advocates of the administration farm program and a substitute proposal that would eliminate acreage allotments, benefit payments and marketing quotas. Called the "domestic allotment" plan, it would permit free and unlimited production of crops, but producers would be paid a fixed price for crops consumed in this country. The surplus would be sold abroad at world prices.

Sharp new deal losses in the midwestern wheat and corn belts at the November election were interpreted by some politicians as expressions of farmer dissatisfaction with low prices and the farm law.

Administration farm officials predicted, however, that quotas would be approved in today's balloting. States in which the referendum were held included Kentucky, Illinois and Missouri.

Duffy "Reserving Judgment" on 1940 Race for Senator

Washington — (P) — Senator Duffy (D-Wis.) said last night he was "reserving judgment" on whether he would be a candidate for the senate in 1940.

The term of Senator LaFollette (D-Wis.) expires then.

Defeated for reelection this year, Duffy said he would return to Fond du Lac to revive his law practice. During his recent presidential conference, he said, there was no discussion of a political appointment "for myself."

Heil Critical of State Expenses

Also Asks Teachers Teach Love of Constitution, Supreme Court

Milwaukee — (P) — Julius P. Heil, Wisconsin governor-elect, mixed criticism of high state expenditures with witticism as he addressed a group of admirers in suburban Whitefish Bay last night.

Smiling, Heil said:

"I understand they're thinking of setting up a new commission here—something to collect taxes on heart beats. Well, my friends, there's not going to be quite so much heart failure in the next few years. We're going to take the strain off those hearts and I don't mean maybe."

He urged teachers to "teach a little more love of mother and father and the freedsie, a little more stars and stripes, a little more constitution, and something about that great institution, The supreme court; it's all so wholesome, you know."

Heil suggested state residents be courteous to visitors from out of state, to smile and "lure" visitors with foreign license plates.

If You've Got a Question-- He'll Help Find the Answer

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — Does your light burn low? Have you found a strange bug in your garden or your basement? Is there some question about the operation of your farm, or your grocery store which has been bothering you? Most private citizens have questions occasionally which some department of the state government can answer, but they don't know to whom to write.

Now there is an office in the capitol for just that purpose. The Capitol Information service has been designed to enlighten the people of Wisconsin on the facts of the state government. Its head is Curtis Fuller.

INFORMATION, PLEASE?

Although Fuller has been working only a few months, the queries he has received are interesting and cover a wide field.

Asks Navigation Rules
A man writes that he and his friends want to make a boat trip down the Mississippi river, and asks for navigation rules on that stream.

From Pound in northern Wisconsin a painter wants to know what state regulations cover his business, and whether a paint-spray operator must have a license.

From Greenville a housewife sends neatly wrapped in oil paper a small moth, with the worried question, "What sort of insect is it, because it is infesting her house."

From Underhill a woman asks where she can get in touch with a dress-making concern with which she has had dealings.

Stamp Collecting
"Could you send me some information or tell me where to get information on stamp collecting," asks a Stockbridge lass.

"When did day-light saving first go into effect in Wisconsin," asks a DePere man.

Power Company to Honor 2 Veterans

Lausman, McGillan, of Appleton, are 40-Year Men

Two Appleton employees of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company, George Lausman and Robert F. McGillan, will be among those honored as "double veterans," a title indicating 40 or more years of service, at a meeting of the Veterans association of four power companies tonight in Milwaukee.

Members of the association are men and women who have had 20 or more years of service. The four companies whose veterans will attend tonight's meeting in the auditorium of the public service building at Milwaukee are the Wisconsin Michigan Power company, Milwaukee Electric Railway and Transport, Wisconsin Electric Power company, and Wisconsin Gas and Electric company.

A special car carrying about 27 veterans from the power company here left via the North Western railway this morning for Milwaukee. The party will return this evening after the meeting. Sylvester Way, president of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company, and who has his office in Milwaukee, will be another of the "double veterans" to be honored tonight.

Green County Holds Man on Assault Charge

Monroe — (P) — Earl Arsenau, 22, who said his home was in Fairhaven, Mass., was under $5,000 bail here today on an armed assault charge while Green county authorities moved to extradite two alleged companions.

Extradition papers were forwarded to Governor Henry Horner of Illinois yesterday for Robert Volk, 22, of Clinton, Ia., and Robert Jacobs, 17, of Morrison, Ill., charged, with intent to rob, and aid in the commission of a felony.

The three men are accused of holding up Harry Young, Monroe salesman, who said he was robbed of $18.

Grade-Crossing Program Slows

Fails to Equal Last Year; Eliminate 14 in Wisconsin

Washington — (P) — The government's grade-crossing elimination program, designed to make America's roads safer and prevent such disasters as the recent Utah school bus-train crash which took more than a score of lives, went forward at a slower pace this year than last.

Bureau of roads officials said work in the 1938 fiscal year did not equal the all-time peak established the preceding year when 1,149 crossings were eliminated, but they pointed to a mark of 711 railroad-highway crossings eliminated, 144 separation structures reconstructed and 744 crossings protected by devices.

The work was financed from a $200,000,000 authorization in the 1935 relief appropriation act and $50,000,000 in federal aid highway funds.

More than half the 1938 fiscal year expenditures of approximately $78,000,000 was in municipalities, reflecting, officials said, the relatively greater dangers at city and suburban crossings.

Pennsylvania led the states in the number of crossings eliminated in 1938 with 37.

Crossings eliminated in the other states included:

Illinois, 17; Indiana, 25; Iowa, 32; Kentucky, 9; Michigan, 6; Minnesota, 12; Missouri, 30; Ohio, 16; Wisconsin, 14.

Dictators Assailed At New York Meeting

New York — (P) — Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Senator Theodore F. Green (D-R. I.), and other prominent Americans denounced treatment of minorities abroad at a rally last night sponsored by Mayor LaGuardia.

A crowd which overflowed Carnegie hall heard the speakers assail dictators and call for safeguards of tolerance and democracy in the United States.

Other speakers at the mayor's "citizens' rally against oppression" were William E. Dodd, former ambassador to Germany; Victor Rider, owner of a German language newspaper here and former New York city WPA administrator; Gertrude Atherton, novelist, and Msgr. Fulton J. Sheen of the Catholic University in Washington.

State Wants High Court to Pass on Oleo Taxing Laws

But Dealers Insist That Alleged Violations Go To Local Courts

BY JOHN W. WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — The state supreme court today had under advisement an appeal by the state through the attorney general's office and the state department of agriculture and markets for leave to bring an original action before the high court against the manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers of a commodity which the state claims is oleo-margarine and which would furnish a declaratory judgment enabling the state to enforce effectively the controversial oleo-margarine tax law.

Some three score or more grocers, most of them in the Fox River Valley

Cashman in Court to Hear Oleo Arguments

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison, Wis. — An interested listener in the packed courtroom which heard arguments in the "oleo-margarine" case before the supreme court yesterday was Senator John E. Cashman of Denmark, sponsor of the 1935 statute which imposed a 15 cent a pound tax on oleo and similar butter substitutes, and required licenses from dealers and wholesaler of the product.

Cashman, in a statement to the press, made clear that he is still an implacable foe of oleo-margarine. "Oleo-margarine," he said, "will ruin the farmers, and when the farmers are ruined, the state is ruined."

He added the observation that "if this law had been properly enforced at the beginning, this case wouldn't be here now."

Section of the state, several wholesalers and the John F. Jelke company of Chicago, makers of the product, were named in the petition which was argued before the court Friday.

One of the distributors is the I. D. Segal company of Appleton, defendants in another oleo suit before the Outagamie county circuit court earlier this year. I. D. Segal as an individual also was named.

The state finds it impossible "effectively and properly to enforce" the oleo tax statute "and to secure for the state its revenue without the determination of the respective rights, status, and legal relations of the parties" named in the petition many others, the court was told.

Won't Appeal
Fred M. Wylie, counsel for the department of agriculture and markets which is charged with administration of the law, argued that further circuit court actions would be useless because of the large number of defendants all over the state, and the fact that the Jelke company, when convicted of violation of the statute, refuses to appeal.

Only a determination by the state high court can guide the department in the proper enforcement of the law, he said.

"The only remedy to clean up this mess," he told the justices, "is to get an original action before this court."

He declared that the judgment of the Outagamie county circuit court this year is of no help to the department because the manufacturer and the wholesaler have changed the method of sale of the product since that decision.

Formerly, he told the court, the product which the department calls oleo-margarine, was sold in two parts but in the same package, which the consumer could mix. One was a vegetable spread, compounded entirely of vegetable fats. The second was called "vitamin fortifier." When sold together, the Outagamie circuit court decided, they constituted a butter substitute as covered in the oleo tax law. Dealers and wholesalers were subject to penalties, taxes, and were required to have a license to sell it.

Since that time, Wylie said, the Jelke company has offered the identical substances in the different cartons. Whether they are to be defined as oleo-margarine or "similar substances" as specified in the tax law the supreme court was asked to decide.

Cite U. S. Ruling
Counsel for the Jelke company cited a ruling which he said was made by the federal bureau of internal revenue which held, he said, that the Jelke spread when sold in separate packages is not oleo-margarine. He also said that the department of agriculture and markets, through its chief chemist, has agreed to this ruling.

Wholesalers and retailers of Milwaukee and the valley area also appeared with counsel to contest the state's petition.

Only one attempt has been made thus far, the Milwaukee group argued, to prosecute dealers and wholesalers charged with violations, and that was the Appleton case against the I. D. Segal company last spring. No attempt has been made in the lower courts to act against anyone since the new method of selling has been adopted, the court was told.

It also was pointed out that if the wholesalers and retailers are liable for sales of the product sep-

Suggests U. S. Aid Drug Addicts

California May Try Rationing Narcotics, Scrap Hospital

San Francisco — (P) — A suggestion that narcotic addicts be placed on rations, under medical supervision, and the state hospitals at Spadra be scrapped as a useless expense is under consideration by California's Democratic governor-elect, Culbert L. Olson.

The proposal came from William G. Walker, enforcement chief of the state narcotics division, who frankly states his belief that all narcotic users are incurable.

"Addicts are sick persons," he said. "The solution of the problem lies in control, not punishment."

Walker suggested addicts be registered, fingerprinted, examined and then allowed government rations of narcotics according to need, with doses gradually decreasing to a minimum. He suggested a federal, rather than a state agency, for this purpose.

The state hospital at Spadra, 30 miles east of Los Angeles, has seldom been filled to its 75-patient capacity since it was opened 5 1/2 years ago, he said, because treatment is largely optional.

"Most addicts would rather go to jail," he said, "because they know they can't be cured."

The enforcement chief asserted his belief such a system as he proposed would put a stop to crimes committed by addicts in order to obtain narcotics, and would leave dealers and peddlers without customers.

Red Cross Collection Totals $2,430 to Date

A total of $2,430.50 has been collected to date in the annual American Red Cross roll call in Outagamie county about $500 short of last year's total, according to Mrs. S. C. Shannon, executive secretary. Still to be heard from are Kaukauna, Seymour, Hortonville, Grand Chute, Freedom, Nichols and Medina. Reports have not been received from several Appleton business houses and industrial plants but were expected today.

ately, the consumer who bought it is also subject to penalties.

Attorney H. Benton of Appleton, appearing for the Segal company and Segal as an individual, asserted that Judge Werner's judgment in Appleton decided that the spread when sold in a single package is taxable, and that nothing can be gained by an original action before the supreme court.

He said that the I. D. Segal company now sells quantities of both the spread and the "fortifier," but that it sells only one product to any one retailer. The state charges that retailers are furnished with a list of those grocers who sell the second commodity, and that the consumer is thus enabled to get both and mix them.

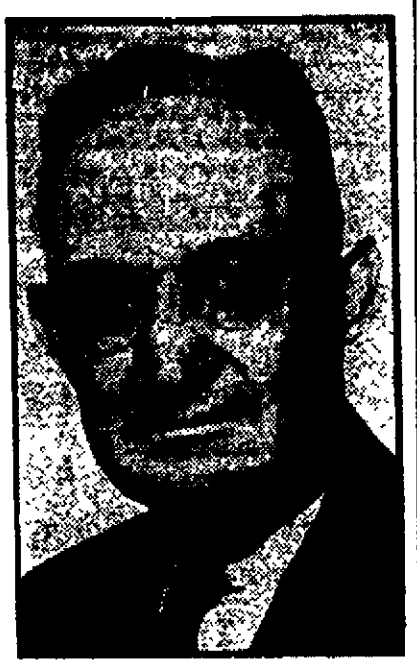

Benton said that he would insist that any action brought by the state against his clients be brought in the local courts of their own county, an Appleton action in Outagamie county, while complaints against a Green Bay retailer should properly be heard in the Brown county circuit court.

Wants Jury Trial
Thomas Ryan of Appleton, representing an Appleton client named in the petition, argued that the respondents in the petition are entitled to a jury trial.

Justice Fowler, presiding in the absence of Chief Justice M. B. Rosenberry, indicated by his questions that the court isn't anxious to assume original jurisdiction in the case. He suggested a petition for a declaratory judgment in a lower court. Counsel for Milwaukee and Appleton defendants promptly offered to stipulate that if they lost their case they would appeal to the state supreme court.

Wylie, however, declined to join in the stipulation. "Yes," he said, "that would give you time to find still another way to sell it."

About $100,000 in taxes is involved in the case, the state claims.

Daladier's Three-Year Plan For 'Economic Mobilization' Intended as French Cure-All

BY MORGAN M. BEATTY
Washington — (P) — You can spell out the persistent crisis in France with a four-letter word everybody knows—D-E-B-T!

If France could whip her debt problem, she could go a long way toward whipping her every other problem—internal and external.

For that reason Washington observers of the world scene are pricking up their ears over Premier Edouard Daladier's "three-year plan for economic mobilization of the nation." They think it is far more significant than the exciting strike news or the Italian hubbub for colonies.

The experts read into M. Daladier's plan a scheme to entice capital to France. For if France can guarantee a three-year period of labor peace and internal stability, a decade-long flight of capital might be halted, and the Bank of France once more could face the world with bulging coffers of gold.

Daladier's Job Tough
These same experts have their doubts, however, that the three-year plan will be easy of achievement. For the sacrifice demanded of French labor is high, and already Daladier is being called a dictator.

The experts summarize the situation like this:

France presents a picture of changing cabinets, each of which since 1928 has lacked either the courage or the ability to try a long term solution of the financial problem created by a series of post-war drains.

The experts cite you Charles Rist, the noted French economist, who insists some such financial facing of the facts as Daladier's three-year plan must be attempted if France is to avoid internal disaster. Internal disaster might invite aggressive dictators to dismember the French colonial empire while the mother country is busy at home.

Situation Getting Worse
France is spending each year on government one-third more money than she collects in taxes, and the spread is increasing all the time. She has often resorted to inflation, including the big inflation of 1928, without pulling herself out of the hole.

The depression brought the world's attention to the persistent state of French financial crisis. In 1931 it became apparent that France was on a financial toboggan, despite her then heavy reserves of gold.

In that year, the national income of 250 billion francs hit the skids. It has melted persistently despite watering of national money. Now it stands at 190 billions.

Tax collections fell off with income. The deficit was 4 billion francs in 1934. In 1938 it was doubled. That, Gold moved out. The French government borrowed money in the open market, until interest rates got too high for comfort.

Economist's Explanation
Let Economist Rist explain it: "Everyone knows that while the government spends more money than it receives, and while the French money market is unable to extend loans, . . . to meet the difference, the government must borrow from the Bank of France. . . . They also know this must result in a new devaluation. . . ."

"The fears which spring from this fact affect all classes of French society. Irrespective of political philosophy, and disregarding whatever social uneasiness may prevail, Frenchmen of all classes agree in wanting to put their money in a safe place. . . . There is not a single Frenchman who has funds which he cannot immediately use who does not reflect whether it might not be safer to send them abroad than to keep them at home."

That's what the economists call the flight of capital. Meanwhile, almost every happening—internal and external—affecting France since the World War has conspired to make matters worse.

One Thing After Another
Here's the sad story in brief review:

1. Post-war reconstruction—This process cost French billions of francs and piled up deficits despite heavy German payments. These deficits brought Poincare's "save the franc cabinet" in 1928. He devalued the franc from 20 to four cents almost balanced the budget, and stemmed the flight of capital.

2. The world-wide depression—When national income began to slough off, tax collections dropped. Deficit again mounted. A new flight of capital developed. The franc, inflated several times, finally was cut loose from gold entirely last year.

3. The rise of Hitler—Because of German rearmament under the Nazi leader, France doubled national defense costs between 1934 and 1938. She now devotes one-third of her annual spending for armaments, one-third to debt charges and public works, and the remaining third to running the regular government establishment.

4. The upheaval of the radicals—Industrial unrest increased during depression years, and French workers voted in an extremely liberal "popular front" government in 1936 which gave workers the 40-hour week, vacations with pay and protected their organization.

Industrial production costs went up, output fell off, further frightening capital. No government seemed able to guarantee a period of stability.

Money for investment was scarce and industrial stagnation developed. That's what Daladier is trying to overcome. He's preaching:

Rural Tenancy in Steady Increase Over Half Century

Proportion of Leased Farms Smaller Than in Neighboring States

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — Although the proportion of farm tendency in Wisconsin is smaller than in neighboring states, the number of tenant operators has increased steadily in the last 50 years, the college of agriculture said today.

While in 1880 only 9 per cent of Wisconsin farmers were tenants, today the proportion is about 21 per cent, or one out of every five farmers in the state.

Moreover, although the rate of farm tenancy is low in this state, the farm mortgage indebtedness is unusually high—over half of the farms in the state were mortgaged when the last figures were available—a ratio exceeded only by North Dakota. In ratio of debt to total value of all farms, Wisconsin ranked first in the nation, 35 per cent.

Rural tenancy in Wisconsin varies widely according to geographical areas. It is heaviest in the extreme southern part of the state—in LaFayette county it is more than 50 per cent, and lowest in the extreme north and north eastern sections, under 10 per cent.

Counties in the northeastern section which have less than 10 per cent farm tenancy are Manitowish, Kewaunee, Door, and Shawano. About average, with from 10 to 20 per cent tenancy, are Outagamie, Brown, Calumet, Waupaca, Marinette and Oconto.

Counties in the lower Fox river valley, including Fond du Lac and Winnebago, have a heavier proportion, from 20 to 30 per cent.

Cash Crop Areas
College specialists pointed out that areas of specialized cash crop production are usually areas of high tenancy. While there are some advantages to tenant farming, such as enabling the farm operator to farm a larger acreage with small amounts of capital, the college specialists observed that "the trend toward more tenant-operated farms cannot be viewed with satisfaction."

"Some of the undesirable features may be eliminated by changing the leasing arrangement between tenant and landlord, but even under the most favorable conditions of tenancy the present proportion of farms operated by tenants may be higher than is desirable."

much because he wants to penalize French workers, but more because he wants to lure money back to France and pump it into the nation's industrial bloodstream thanks to the Bank of France.

City Basketball League's Season Will Open Sunday

Three Afternoon Games Scheduled for High School Gym

Kaukauna — Three games will be played Sunday afternoon in the high school gymnasium as the city basketball league opens another season. The first game, at 1:30 pits the Gustmans against the Panty Lunch; the second, at 2:30, the Catholic Youth five against the D-X Oils; and the last, at 3:30, the Mel-lows Brews against the Pulp-makers. James T. Judd, elected league manager two weeks ago, will be in charge.

As in last season, games will be played Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons. Two league games, beginning a week from Saturday, will be played that evening, and one league tilt and a contest pitting a league team against an outside five will be scheduled each Sunday afternoon.

The Gustman five, annually a contender for the title and champions two years ago, will be favored to win against the Panty Lunch in the league opener tomorrow. With an offense built around Bud Koch, former Kaukauna High school center star, the Gustmans are nearly the strong offensive club in the loop. The Panty five has been reorganized from last year, with five new players on the squad, Monroe Romanesco, Art Wolf, Leo King, Bill McCormick and Don Kobs. Veterans from the 1937 season are Ed Kaphingst, Ed Kramer and Melvin Walsh.

Oils Are Favored
In the D-X Oils—CYO battle the former team, which has been organized and playing for two weeks already, will be a slight favorite. On the Oils are last year's high school forwards, Bill Peterson and Cliff Vaneevenhoven, with two stars of the 1936 team, Art Koehne and Hatchell, also in the lineup. Last year Koehne led the league in scoring most of the season. Don and Wilfred Van Abel, Chuck Arnold and Ed Eiting complete the D-X squad.

This is the first time the CYO has entered a team, which shapes up as a title contender. CYO players are Ken Vils, John Nies, Roman Berg, Alvin McCormick, Stan Kramer and Rudy Wucherer.

The Mellow Brews, last year's champs, should get off on the right foot against the Pulpmakers. On the latter five are Jerry and Joe Vils, S. Sanders, Jim Schermitzler, Icky Van Drasek and Cornelius Mayer. Ed Bloch, giant center, Ralph Wurdinger and DeBruin will form the nucleus of the Mellow Brew array.

The completed player lists must be turned in to Judd by Wednesday.

School Music Groups To Perform Wednesday

Kaukauna — The annual concert sponsored by Kaukauna High school music organizations will be held Wednesday evening in the city auditorium. Groups taking part are the boys' glee club, girls' glee club, mixed chorus, band and orchestra. Clarence Kriesa and Miss Lucille Austin will direct the concert.

Business Men Get Tired of Making Out New Deal Reports

Washington—One of the most common complaints against the New Deal heard from business men is that they are burdened with demands for an unreasonable number of reports and answers to windy questionnaires from Washington.

In part, of course, such complaints are a cover for annoyance not so much about the reports but about the government purposes behind them. Complaints about complicated income tax returns are more likely complaints against taxes. Nevertheless the Social Security act, wage and hour legislation, the Labor Relations act, and numerous state laws of similar character all combine to add greatly to the amount and cost of bookkeeping and reporting which business men must make to state and federal governments. Many firms have had to enlarge accounting forces and spend considerably more on legal fees to insure that they were conforming to administrative interpretations of the law.

Roosevelt some time ago asked the central statistical board to study the possibilities of eliminating duplicate requests and nuisance demands. The report is practically complete and will be submitted to the White House within two or three weeks.

Meantime administrative efforts have been made to reduce the demands on business houses. The central statistical board has been scrutinizing proposed questionnaires of other agencies and has killed off about 12 per cent of those it was proposed to inflict upon business men. Whenever a new official sets up shop, he is apt to want to start off by sending out long questionnaires, some of which require days or even weeks of time to answer. During NRA days business firms were swamped with questionnaires. Firms would receive perhaps 10 in one day, and if answered fully, the material would fill a book.

Labor Department Has Simplified its System
The bureau of labor statistics has simplified its report forms, for instance, by abandoning questionnaires to banks, which already were reporting to the federal reserve board and other agencies. One or two additional questions in these forms met the needs of the bureau of labor statistics. Likewise the federal power commission requires data from its reports to the bureau of labor statistics, thus eliminating the need of a separate questionnaire. Dr. Isador Lubin, commissioner of labor statistics, has kept his requests for information within such bounds that during his time in office the number of firms making voluntary reports to him has increased from 30,000 to 100,000, with no compulsion of any kind.

During one period in which the central statistical board scrutinized 700 proposed questionnaires to business men from various government agencies, it persuaded the bureau to abandon 100 as an unnecessary burden to business houses. But new agencies multiply so fast that such elimination of reports is more than offset by new ones.

One chief cause of complaint has been the heavy volume of reports required under the Social Security act. Sentiment is increasing for changing the stamp payment system used in Europe. Use of stamps, however, is not practicable except where payments of individual employees are uniform in amount, and as our system is based on a percentage of wages paid, fundamental revision of the Social Security act would be necessary to make possible the use of the simpler stamp payment system. But it would save an enormous amount of bookkeeping and clerical work, both for the government and for business houses.

A New York firm found it was making out 51 separate tax returns a year. Some think that consolidations of returns could be arranged that would reduce the labor and expense involved.

Modern government is compelled to carry on many activities not thought necessary a hundred years ago. But the fact that so much more government activity is necessary makes it all the more imperative that administrative red tape be reduced to the absolute minimum, to eliminate, as far as possible, government annoyance.

The one high game gave the Reds one victory over Zaugs Pirates with a 906 total without the handicap. Pete Westphal paced the Pirates with a 59 series in games of 182, 232 and 192. Lex Frank's 209 and Graichen's 208 game were tops for Franks Cubs as they lost two matches to Krolls Bees. Scores on the North Side matches were unavailable last night.

They meet at Lincoln school from 3:30 to 6 o'clock every school day afternoon to make things out of wood, bone, leather, metal or other materials. Soon they plan to meet evenings also.

New London Bees Score 17-13 Win

Defeat Shawano Seconds In Well-Played Preliminary

New London—The New London "B's" put up a polished fight against the Indian reserves in a preliminary basketball game at Washington High school gym last night and scalped the invaders 17 to 13 in a well-played contest.

Offensively the squad divided points almost equally, Dean Jeffers with a 1-point edge leaving the game on fouls in the last period. Defensively the Indians were outclassed and a pair of Andersons on the visiting reserves were the only two able to score.

The locals took the lead from the start and built up to a 13-8 margin at the end of the third period. This they pressed to 15-8 early the fourth quarter. The visitors gained four points to their none in short order but the Stacy figdiggers weren't caught napping like last week and put on the pressure for the final victory margin.

Industry Takes Forward Step in Admitting Errors

Lawrence Applauds Courage in Action of Manufacturers

Washington—Something unique in public expression has appeared in the platform adopted by the Congress of American Industry conducted annually by the National Association of Manufacturers.

Here is the brief text of this all-important formal resolution adopted by the manufacturers:

"America's progress depends upon a united effort of industry, commerce, agriculture and labor in co-operation with government. All of these groups have made mistakes, and we in industry admit our share. All have learned that there is a true harmony of interest between them, and there is a growing demand for intelligent teamwork. If these groups work together for future progress, more jobs and better living can be provided for the 30,000,000 American families."

Now, that sounds like a simple thing for an organization to say. But it is nevertheless true that there were some who wanted to omit saying it, or at least did not relish the frank acknowledgment of "mistakes." Yet in that very attitude of willingness to concede wrong may be the beginning of a really new era of cooperation. For the word "cooperation" has been used again and again without moving the conflicting groups closer together, largely because the groups were unwilling to revise previous courses of action.

Confession of Groups

The old saying that "confession is good for the soul" has unfortunately been applied as a rule mostly to personal behavior and personal morality when, as a matter of fact, it applies even more pointedly to groups and their leaders, who are responsible for the action of thousands of persons in their membership.

There can be no doubt that an uncompromising position on the part of groups and their leaders has in the last few years made it difficult to surmount the barriers to mutual understanding. Governmental groups have hesitated to admit error for fear of political effect. Leaders of national organizations have been reluctant to admit error for fear of the criticism of their own rank and file as well as outside groups.

But to err is human, and the frank confession of error is extremely helpful, not at all because it enables the critic to note those who have been responsible for mistakes and not at all because it gives anybody the satisfaction of saying "I told you so," but primarily because it is a sign that future courses of action are going to be corrected.

The fact that the manufacturers, for instance, admit their share of the mistakes made in the adjustment of our national economy can by itself have no more than an academic importance if it is only a pious recitation of a bit of unhappy economic history. It becomes of great constructive value, on the other hand, if it means that the same mistakes will not be made again and that a consciousness of the pitfalls of the past has been awakened.

Effect on Others

Important, too, is the effect on other organizations. Will labor now frankly concede some of its mistakes? Will governmental leaders concede and recognize the impracticability of some of their schemes? Will agricultural groups be ready now to allow their programs to be weighed in the light of a national interest?

The profound effect of admission of error as a basic and fundamental step in the evolution of national policies can hardly be exaggerated. For it begins to reveal that, to solve the many complex problems in a democracy where volition rather than compulsion is the custom, there is a need for simple honesty in the negotiation and intercourse of groups with another.

Confession of error is thus a first step toward the establishment of an honest atmosphere. Pride sometimes impedes a revelation of error and pride is often a form of individual or group selfishness. When, therefore, the manufacturers and business leaders admit mistakes, they begin to tolerate other points of view than their own. If they now will follow that up with a recognition of what causes mistakes of policy to be made—as, for instance, the preoccupation of business men with material rather than human factors—the task of persuading other groups to join in cooperative endeavors for the nation will be greatly facilitated.

Industry Takes Forward Step in Admitting Errors

Lawrence Applauds Courage in Action of Manufacturers

Washington—Something unique in public expression has appeared in the platform adopted by the Congress of American Industry conducted annually by the National Association of Manufacturers.

Here is the brief text of this all-important formal resolution adopted by the manufacturers:

"America's progress depends upon a united effort of industry, commerce, agriculture and labor in co-operation with government. All of these groups have made mistakes, and we in industry admit our share. All have learned that there is a true harmony of interest between them, and there is a growing demand for intelligent teamwork. If these groups work together for future progress, more jobs and better living can be provided for the 30,000,000 American families."

Now, that sounds like a simple thing for an organization to say. But it is nevertheless true that there were some who wanted to omit saying it, or at least did not relish the frank acknowledgment of "mistakes." Yet in that very attitude of willingness to concede wrong may be the beginning of a really new era of cooperation. For the word "cooperation" has been used again and again without moving the conflicting groups closer together, largely because the groups were unwilling to revise previous courses of action.

STILL WANDERING

If we are to accept the statements made by Isidore Lubin, Commissioner of Labor Statistics, and Marriner Eccles, Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, and voiced almost on the same day, we must conclude that the administration is still roving its eyes from star to star in the endless galaxies of the heavens and still pulling on the rabbit's foot of wistful wishing.

For Lubin declared that the only way to make our national machine function to capacity was to increase the lowest income group of our population by seven billion dollars a year and Eccles fell back on that moth-eaten subterfuge that we will never balance the federal budget until we raise the national income up to 85 or 90 billions a year.

It is a pity to let this sort of hopeless reasoning go unchallenged. The Roosevelt administration is not wet nurse to the idea, only in days gone by men who advanced the notions were smiled at and let go their harmless ways. The only difference between today and the time of Coin's Financial School was that in the 90's our fathers were too smart to succumb to mere glossy theories and the nation was saved from Coin's apparitions, a happy circumstance that was not repeated when Mr. Roosevelt was elected.

The fact is that both in manufacturing and transportation the portion of the realized income of all corporations so engaged was materially higher, indicating a better distribution, just before the big crash of 1929, and that the total national income from all sources was then the highest in our history. And yet we fell. And how!

If these gentlemen of honeyed words want to play with statistics they will find that all the industries in the country were turning over to their workers approximately 54 per cent of their total realized income during the decade running from 1909 to 1919; and that in the following decade the percentage had jumped to 58. Surely this trend, which was so in keeping with Mr. Lubin's idea would hardly be admitted by him to have caused the debacle.

During the same two decades the employees in manufacturing and transportation saw their share of the total realized income made by their companies jump from 78 to 86. And yet we fell. And the storm obliterated the sun.

When it comes to talking about a greater national income and a larger percentage distribution to the low income groups won't anyone talk about the necessity of those groups creating more wealth or the inescapable conclusion that national income as a whole can never be raised unless more national wealth is created?

But lie upon such clumsy questions! If we faced realities of this nature we couldn't have such a thick ceiling and hard floor on wages and hours.

And if we couldn't have floors and ceilings what could we sing about?

CHRISTMAS IS COMING

Recently a YMCA circular letter called attention to the 2,000 year old story of the young man who went forth to sow. He cast some seeds upon the wayside and they were gobbled up by sharp eyed fowl. Other seeds fell among the stones and when the grain appeared it was scorched by the sun and without proper root failed of sufficient energy to withstand the heat. Other seeds fell among thorns and when they sprouted were immediately choked by the greedy weeds that devoured all available substance. But some fell upon good ground and theirs is the story of worthy production.

At the Christmas season mankind is still scattering seeds. Children represent the good soil for the season is primarily one for children.

Someone very aptly set off Thanksgiving as against Christmas, the former a day for adults, the latter a day for children, the former a day for looking backward, the latter a glowing day of hopefully looking forward.

At Thanksgiving we take stock of national accomplishments and look back over the long and tedious road beset by dangers. But at Christmas we look forward with the eyes of youngsters and fancifully build castles in the air without which as a prelude no actual castles could ever be constructed anywhere.

During the entire Christmas period the grown-up seeks to follow the child with its generosity and affection and gathers a bountiful harvest of good from the youngster's idealism. During this time it may be said there is almost complete surrender to idealism and although the latter is a bubbly, frothy matter it is still matter and contains some things of substance, genuinely worthwhile, and that, well scattered over the workaday world, stays the fall and softens the bruise.

The source of our Christmas period is sacred and though we have built up an extensive sort of mythology and make-believe, it too, is just as sacred because it was nurtured by good wishes and kindness, suggested by the divine wonder in youthful eyes, and given everlasting life by the rollicking joy it created among children far and wide.

It is difficult, perhaps even impossible, to vision a world without Christmas. To abandon it would take from our lives something at once so essential and so majestic that we would likely feel like the last of a tribe wandering hopelessly among the ruins of a civilization. Hardly any desolation could be more complete.

Remembering then that it is the children's great season it is necessary also to bear in mind that whether one be 30 or 60 or 90 there is still great happiness and wisdom to be gained from the romping joys and soaring imaginations of the young, and that when all touch with youth is lost the material that is left is as hard as rock and as valuable as ashes.

RUSSIAN BABES MARCH ON—SANS DIAPERS

Slaves of the capitalistic system must continue to cast their eyes in awe at the efficiency and dispatch of Soviet Russia. Americans, chained to wastage, sloth and hit-or-miss government by their devotion to the ideal of freedom, must look on the wonders of the Communist state with longing and adoration.

For in government and economic planning lies the future of the world. Of what value is it to let men do what they please when it is so much easier and better to have one wise man direct the efforts of all. That is organization, efficiency.

Do not men sometimes drink too much bourbon, eat too much turkey? Wouldn't it be much better to have the government tell them they cannot drink more than two beers at a sitting or have more than one slice of white meat and one slice of dark? If men are not wise enough themselves to keep their health, must not the state preserve it for them?

Every once in awhile Americans will seize upon an instance where Soviet Russia has miscalculated and use it to demonstrate that government is not infallible. For instance recently it was discovered that there was a shortage of diapers in Russia and the American press made fun of it. It merely goes to show the ends to which a free press will go to make news. If the government tells the newspapers what is news, such foolishness does not occur. Too many people are made to laugh by such a story. Laughing is not good; it begets cramps.

The papers make a lot of this diaper shortage. The Russian government figured it right, they ordered enough diapers, several million of them, but for some reason the factories did not turn out enough, only several hundred thousand. It was a human breakdown again. Too bad the government cannot give its orders direct to the machines.

Can it be the system that makes the breakdown? Answer for yourself. Yet the following two are plain facts cabled from Russia.

On trial in Moscow, accused of the bitter crime of "producing 2 million imaginary pencils," went the executives but a week ago of the Sacco & Vanzetti Pencil Factory, well named after two murderers.

That, it must be remembered, was a factory that was instituted under Lenin by the famed Hammer family, headed by an American business man who persuaded Lenin to permit him to start a pencil monopoly in the Soviet union. The Hammers cleaned up plenty of money. And they had sufficient influence so that when Stalin came to power he bought them out for a million dollars by paying them in Romanov antiques which they brought to this country and sold.

But while Hammer was running that pencil factory it never produced "2 million imaginary pencils." Hammer couldn't sell imaginary pencils. He had to have the real article. He produced real pencils in order to live and prosper.

But already his fine and efficient factory is crippled and broken. It only takes the Soviets a decade to destroy any business, whether they do it with bombs and torch or just by their operation.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

LAMPS IN A HAPPY HOME

Lamps in a happy home shine brighter. So every passerby can tell. Hearts in a happy home are lighter. For there is joy where loved ones dwell.

Words in a happy home are sweeter; No jangling discord marks the day. Time does not drag here; hope is fleet; No shadows fall across its way.

Eyes in a happy home are steady; Softer than other gazes are. Feet in a happy home are ready, In a good cause, to travel far.

Lamps in a happy home are burning. And who can gauge their healing rays, Falling into the darkness, turning Faltering feet to happy ways.

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—Yesterday was Ladies' Day as far as I'm concerned. I flitted from beauty to beauty, which is nice work if you can get it, and got it.

First it was Dorothy Lamour. Or maybe it was Dorothy Fox, the dancer, who was first. Lupe Velez darted in and out of the picture at some part of the proceedings; and I have a vague recollection of Adelaide Moffett, the society girl who sings. She was wearing glasses and looking very dignified. But that was about 3:30 a.m. at Jack White's 18 Club, and one can never be quite sure of anything there, except the cover charge.

I recall now that Dorothy Lamour was first. She was giving a bit of a cocktail party at the Waldorf. I sat down beside her.

"And now," she murmured, cozyish, "we can have a nice long chat."

I mentally crossed my fingers. I had sat down to have nice long chats with cinema glamor girls before, and had wound up with no pencil marks on my notebook.

"I was born—," she began then halted as a tall chap approached. "Have you met my husband?" she inquired. I said: "Howdyhoo, Mr. Kay," and he said: "Please don't stand on my account. Sit down."

"You were born—?" I said, turning to Miss Lamour.

"Oh, yes. Herbie. I was just telling Mr. Harrison I was—excuse me a moment please. Here comes that man from the studio. If he dares to tell me I have to have retakes—"

I turned to her husband and said it is nice weather we've been having. He said he hadn't noticed. I said that just goes to show how even the weather is a lousy fulcrum for conversation. He said are you having a cocktail? (on account of this was a cocktail party) and I said yes, I am having a cocktail, and it looks like I'll be in the alcoholic ward at Bellevue before Miss Lamour gets around to tell me where she was born. And he laughed and said: That's easy she was born in—oh, pardon me, I want to catch Joe before he dashes off.

So I sat around, and pretty soon Paramount's Glamour Girl returned. I arose politely until she had seated herself. You may not realize it, but this bobbing up and down to be polite to Famous Females gets me after awhile, right behind the knees.

"Let's begin at the beginning," I suggested. "You mean about where I was born?" she said. "All right, I was—"

A page boy appeared. There was a phone call for Miss Lamour. Would she take it, or must the caller leave a message? Who was it? She went into conference with three men who were hovering solicitously near—managers, agents and that sort of thing.

I closed my notebook resignedly and departed. If you are interested, I knew all along that Miss Lamour was born in New Orleans.

I found Dorothy Fox in her dressing room at the Music Box. She had just finished removing her matinee makeup and was putting more on to go out. I said: "Miss Fox, before we even start talking, where were you born?"

She was born in St. Louis. It was turning out to be a big day for the Mississippi River.

Miss Fox is one of our better dancers—better because her dances are built on ideas more than on wiggles. She is currently featured in "Sing Out the News."

Having heard that Miss Fox has beautiful legs, I inquired why she always was so careful to cover them when she danced. "Because the appeal of my dancing is directed to the intelligence," she answered.

She said that women are the real determinants of a woman performer's success, and that they applaud more generously when the performer is not too beautiful. That, said Miss Fox, is because men, left to their own devices, would applaud beauty more than talent, but hesitate to do so in the presence of their wives or sweethearts. She noted that the best known women stars of the stage are not beauties—and therefore are not causes for jealousy.

Dining at the Stork Club later, who should pop in but Dynamite Lupe Velez who slithered into a chair at full speed, discharged a current of conversation all in one breath, bounced up and dashed out.

I didn't even have a chance to ask where she was born. Actually by that time I didn't care. I wasn't wondering where any girls were born then. What I wondered was why.

M. H. Nieson, proprietor of the LaSalle hotel, Kaukauna, had purchased the High Cliff property.

The Tuesday club was to meet with Mrs. A. M. Lewis on Appleton street the following week. Mrs. L. F. Bushey, Miss Ida Hopkins, Mrs. W. O. Thiede, Miss Flora Keithroe and Miss Anna Petersen were to have charge of the work.

At the meeting of the Modern Woodmen the previous night, the following officers were elected: Counsel, J. A. Merkel; adviser, Schneider; banker, Clarence Merkel; clerk, A. J. Boggs; escort, H. A. 10 YEARS AGO

Saturday, Dec. 8, 1928

Stock prices were sent tumbling on the New York Stock exchange Saturday, Radio touching $23, which was nearly $100 under its high mark reached but three days ago and $43 under Friday's closing price. Many traders began to dump their holdings and commission houses refrained from predicting how far the reaction would go.

Frank Luedtke, town of Center, was elected president of the Twelve Corners-Mackville Telephone company at the annual meeting of stockholders at Griesbach hall in Mackville the previous afternoon. Other officers elected were Fred Mueller, Black Creek, secretary; John Kruetzman, treasurer; William Smith, Black Creek, and Fred Bohl, Grand Chute, directors.

Presenting "The Lord's Prayer" by Francois Copee, the selection with which she won first place in the George Dame declamatory contest, Miss Betty Meyer, Appleton High school student, won second place in the Fox River Valley declamatory contest at East Green Bay High school Friday afternoon.

Despite the fact that passage from the ocean to Flathead Lake in Montana is cut off by the Polson dam, state game officials report the number of salmon that spawn in the lake each year seems to be increasing.

The average butter-fat production from cows milked in this country last year was about 170 pounds. Cows in dairy herd improvement associations were doing better than that more than 35 years ago.

Hunters believe some of the mountain bears in Western North Carolina are mixed with grizzly blood, since some grizzly stock was imported into the section 8 years ago.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—Members of Congress who like to get their teeth into a resounding phrase like "downtrodden farmer" or "equality of opportunity" are taking an awful beating in the early days of the monopoly investigation.

They brought it upon themselves, for they invited economists to put the bedrock under the inquiry and the economists set about doing it in a way that only economists can devise.

Lubin is no fan dancer when it comes to holding an audience and in 20 minutes he had emptied a fourth of the seats in the once crowded Senate caucus room. Two-thirds of the spectators had had enough by lunch time.

But the members of Congress could not walk out on their own hearing, especially since they had bally-hoed it to the skies. They had to sit while Lubin told them, among other things, that based on 1929 national income the country had lost $133,000,000,000 during the depression, or, if figured another way, the loss was $225,000,000,000.

Lubin Let's 'Em Have It

All in all it was a field day for figures and Lubin was in there pitching. He was born with a statistic in his mouth and probably as a boy was one of those forever asking you to take a number, add four, multiply it by six and extract the square root and the answer is 11.

Without pausing to draw breath he recited that salaries and wages lost in the depression amounted to $119,354,000,000, man-years of labor lost ran to 43,435,000, while coupon clippers lost $19,800,000,000 in dividends. Gross farm losses added up to $38,600,000,000.

Strangely enough the production of shoes didn't slip much, even in the tough years, which indicates the days of the barefoot boy are about gone. In 1936 and 1937 more than 400,000,000 pairs were produced each year, far greater even than 1929.

By this time several committee members were more than bored while others tried to cover up by asking questions. A member of Congress can't yawn in public with any safety whatever because sure as shootin' a photographer will snap him with his mouth stretched to ball-swallowing proportions.

It is increasingly evident that neither members of the committee nor the general public had fully understood the magnitude of the investigation until the economists began staking out the foundation. If finished as outlined it will take ten months to two years of more or less continuous hearings.

Already it is widely speculated that ultimately the thing will narrow down to a battle of economists, each seeking to impose his pet theory of economic reformation upon the committee when it comes to writing legislation. In that event the economist who wins the inside track with the committee will design the legislation, regardless of stacks of tables, charts and horseback opinions.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D. Noted Physician and Author

REFINED DIET

Preceding articles have explained why it is essential that our modern diet, consisting largely of refined foods, must be supplemented with adequate daily rations of vitamin B complex in order to maintain anything like optimal health.

In recent years a so-called "smooth diet" has gained wide popularity in cases of peptic (gastric or duodenal) ulcer, intestinal trouble, deranged colon or, as many victims mistakenly call it, mucous colitis—which term is wrong because, first, mucus is not a cause of the trouble, and second, there is generally no inflammation of the colon present.

To regard colon derangement, due to nutritional deficiency, as "mucous colitis" is perhaps not so serious a mistake, for the patient's welfare, as is the popular practice of adopting a smooth diet and, because the near-invalid or actually invalid experiences less difficulty while following the diet, adhering to it for long periods. This ill-advised or unadvised practice is accountable for progressive decline in health and vitality in many such cases.

The grave fault with the smooth diet, as a steady diet, is precisely the fault with the everyday refined diet, namely, that it fails to supply the essential vitamins. If the everyday refined diet on which a large proportion of the population subsists, is poor in vitamins, how much worse in that respect is the diet restricted to certain "smooth" foods, food from which various natural components have been carefully removed.

Several ounces of pure wheat germ, or a few ounces of dried brewers yeast, or one or two ounces of rice polishes, or a combination of all three, if consumed every day, would fully supplement the everyday refined diet in the essential vitamin B complex. These are the richest known natural sources of vitamin B-1, B-2 or G, and the various other vitamins or factors of vitamin B complex.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Blowing The Nose

Is it harmful to blow your nose? Health magazine articles say this causes brain infection or sinus infection. Is that true? Please give your advice. (B. C.)

Answer—Why don't they ask me these things when I'm revising? You'll find nearly every other practical point discussed in the latest revision of "Call It Cold"—68-page booklet on so-called "colds," catarrhs, sinusitis, bronchitis, laryngitis, tracheitis, polyp, ozema, enlarged tonsils, etc. For copy send twenty-five cents coin and stamped envelope bearing your address. It is generally better not to blow the nose at all, but instead, with mouth open, nostrils NOT pinched, merely aid outflow of nasal secretions by moderately increased expulsive effort. In sinus trouble it is worth while assuming special postures for a few minutes to favor natural drainage.

Off Physic

A year ago I sent for your booklet "Constipation." First I failed to grasp the idea, but on second reading I began to believe... haven't taken or needed any kind of physic since. (M. F. S.)

Answer—Any reader may have copy of booklet "Constipation Habit and Colon Hygiene" on request. Enclose ten cent coin and stamped addressed envelope. Do not send a clipping or loose stamps.

Living Room Temperature

What is considered a healthy living room temperature for normal, average people at this season in New England? The house is steam heated. Your decision shall be final for this family. (J. D. F.)

Answer—68 degrees F. If the atmosphere is kept properly humidified temperature will be most comfortable for all concerned. Send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for monograph on "Humidity in the Home."

"SAGITTARIUS"

If December 12 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:15 a. m. to 12:15 p. m.; from 2:15 to 4:15 p. m. and from 7:15 to 9:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:15 to 10:15 a. m.; from 5:15 to 7:15 p. m. and from 9:15 to 11:15 p. m.

Lack of appreciation, may be the besetting sin of the average person this day. Too many people will accept service and kindnesses as a matter of course, without considering the time, effort, inconvenience or sacrifice that might be involved. This day is apt to be filled with peculiar coincidences, many of them being decidedly pleasant ones. Be careful that self-absorption does not make you oblivious to a condition requiring your personal attention. Disappointments will be due largely to too much optimism, and the failure of most people to analyze existing conditions. You may find some very good reason back of every decision and action so question none until you have familiarized yourself with the general situation. Married and engaged couples, and prospective brides and grooms, must be careful that some unworthy suspicion does not spoil this day for them.

If a woman and December 12 is your birthday, don't let envy make you discontented. Rejoice in the success of others and in time you may share some of their good fortune. Cultivate the habit of good fortune you are likely to possess th, wherever it may be. As a teacher, singer, musician, writer, actress or business executive your ability should be easily demonstrated and be responsible for your getting very gratifying results. Your matrimonial prospects for happiness and prosperity ought to grow brighter and brighter.

The child born on December 12 gives great promise of becoming an outstanding member of society. This youngster's enterprising spirit ought to gain it recognition as being endowed with leadership qualifications and executive efficiency.

If a man and December 12 is your natal day, you may be far more sentimental than your friends suspect. Generosity is in all likelihood, one of your principle characteristics. You ought to make an excellent lawyer, doctor, actor, preacher, singer, musician, journalist or salesman.

Woman Has Only Self to Blame For Inappreciative Children

BY DOROTHY DIX
Dear Miss Dix—I am the mother of six children, three boys and three girls, all of whom are now grown and working. No mother ever sacrificed more for her children than I did. I worked from fourteen to sixteen hours a day that they might be well fed, have a good home and an education. Many a night I have sat up until dawn making a pretty dress for one of the girls, or washing the shirts of the boys. Now I am old and in bad health and need the help and affection of my children, but they only know me when they need me. They rarely come to see me and they never remember a birthday or a Mother's Day with even a card. Can you suggest where I failed in the rearing of my children?
A BROKEN-HEARTED MOTHER.

Answer:
One doesn't have to be a seer or possess any occult gifts to answer that question. Your children treat you the way they do because you never taught them to respect you, or to have any appreciation of what you did for them, or to feel any responsibility toward you.

You made yourself a doormat for them and quite naturally they tramped over you and kicked you about. You tolled while they played and they grew up thinking that Mother's proper place was in the kitchen, and all that she was good for was to wait on them. You meekly took their sulks and abuse and so they felt the contempt for you that we feel for our inferiors. You gave everything and demanded nothing in return, so they have never felt that they owed you anything.

Every mother writes her own price tag for her children and they accept her exactly at her own valuation. If she puts herself on a pedestal, they bow down and worship her. If she poses as an oracle, they go through life thinking that "Mother knows best" about everything, and deferring to her opinions and judgment. The beloved mothers are not the slave mothers. They are invariably the mothers who have made themselves the queens of their families.

One of the queer things about mothers is that they think that they can rear children to be one thing and then, when they are grown, some miracle will take place that will turn them into something else. On every side of us we see mothers spoiling children rotten, letting them grow up without any control, permitting them to talk back to them and defy them, and excusing their weakness and folly by saying: "Oh, when Johnny and Sally grow up they will appreciate all I have done for them and love me for it."

But that never happens. You can't cultivate selfishness in an individual for twenty years and then have him turn into a self-abnegating altruist. You can't let a child look down on you from his infancy up and then have it respect you. You can't teach a child to take all you do for it for granted and then when he is a man cherish you and appreciate you. You have to begin in the cradle to teach a child to say "thank you" and be grateful if you ever expect him to do it. The eternal law "as you sow so shall you reap" never works out so relentlessly as in the rearing of children. Every child treats his parents as they have taught him to treat them.

Dear Dorothy Dix—My husband is a salesman receiving a small salary. He is leaving his insurance to be divided equally between me and our four children, aged 4, 7, 10 and 15. The money is to be paid in small monthly payments. I do not approve of this arrangement. If my husband should die before I do, I want all of the money to invest in a store-keeping business. He is afraid I would remarry and that then our children would get none of his insurance. But I will never marry again under any circumstances. Please help us to decide what should be done about the insurance.
VERY DISAPPOINTED.

Answer:
Whether a man who has children should give everything he possesses to his wife when he dies, or divide it between his wife and his children, depends upon how big an estate he has to leave, and upon what sort of a business woman his wife is.

If there is very little money, it is generally better to keep it together and let the wife control it, provided she has shown that she is a good manager and has enough common sense to use some judgment in her investments and not fall prey to the first glib-talking salesman who comes along and promises to make her rich if she will only put her husband's insurance in Wild Cat Preferred.

But if a man knows that his wife has had no business experience and that she knows so little about handling money that she can't even keep within her budget, and that she is so credulous that she would trust everything she has to Deacon Cheaten because he prays so beautifully in church, he is very wrong and foolish to leave his children's future in their mother's incompetent hands, and he should give each child his individual portion of his estate.

A great many men leave everything they have to their wives on the theory that a mother will always look out for her children. But this does not take into consideration the fact that widows, especially if they are rich widows, are only too often the victims of fortune-hunters who rob their stepchildren of their father's property. Also, if a woman remarries and has a second lot of children, she almost invariably is more devoted to them than she is to her first children and does not hesitate to deprive her first children of their father's money to give to her younger brood.

But each individual case has to be settled on its individual merits, and what is far more important to you than your husband's insurance is for you not to quarrel over it.

Answer:
Write him a note and tell him you are sorry to have missed him every time he has come to see you. Explain that you are never at home between such and such hours and that you are always at home between such and such other hours, and that you hope he will come to see you again. Or, better still, invite him to a meal. Can't you do this? It would be the natural thing to do. Write him a note and ask him if he will come to Sunday dinner, or Saturday night dinner, or to any meal that you can ask him for. It would be very nice to invite him at the same time you are asking other friends, especially any others who met him at the same time you did.

Addressing Christmas Cards
Dear Mrs. Post: To settle an argument please answer as to whether or not it is considered good taste to mail Christmas cards and other special occasion greetings addressed on a typewriter. And is it proper to send envelopes unsealed and save postage?

Answer: A typewriter should never be used for formal social notes, still less for social addresses and messages. On the other hand, a typewriter is entirely proper for very long letters to friends as well as all letters on business subjects. Christmas cards, however, are not addressed by hand; messages should also be written in by hand. The flap should not be turned in, because full postage should be put on the envelope. It seems to me that rather than to save a penny on the stamp it would be better to buy less expensive cards. There are many economies of which every one approves; there are other economies that are very skimpy-seeming, and penny postage saving is, I think, one of the latter.

Interviewing An Employee
Dear Mrs. Post: If a lady is staying in a hotel and during this stay has to engage a new chauffeur, where does she interview him? I mean, is it proper to have him come up to her rooms?

Answer: If she has a sitting-room she of course receives him there. But even if she has only a bedroom it would be proper to receive him in it. By this I mean, of course, that the bedroom is made up and that she is fully dressed. Or if the hotel is a very quiet one and the public rooms downstairs are not crowded, she might have him meet her there. Usually, however, it is better to see him, and any other person whom she is interviewing, in the quiet of her room.

My Neighbor Says—
If eggs are properly cooked, they lose none of their food value. Cook them slowly at moderate, even heat.

To measure milk or other liquids, place the cup on a flat surface and pour in the required amount. Never tap the side of a cup to level dry ingredients—since such tapping often packs them and increases the actual amount of the ingredient in the cup.

Thoroughly wash and dry all metal utensils before storing them in the cupboard—to prevent rusting. It is also a good idea to place them over a burner on the stove for a few seconds after washing and drying them.

Freak Hand Called for 4-Heart Bid

BY ELY CULBERTSON
Just last Friday I published a hand received from a St. Louis correspondent, remarking at that time that some merry prankster had slipped over the immortal Mississippi Heart Hand on the unsuspecting contestants at a social duplicate game. I am glad to see that my guess proved correct. Note:

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: After mailing that hand in to you I found out that it was a joke played on us by one of the club members. I have another very interesting hand to submit, but am almost afraid to send it for fear it will turn out to be another prank. However, here it is: I was South."

"As soon as I passed I realized that I should have said four hearts, but my partner was the 'dictator type' and it is almost as much as your life is worth to take a bid away from him. When I laid down the dummy after a lead from East of his fourth best club I feared my partner was going to have a stroke, so I just sat with my eyes glued on the dummy, afraid to glance up."

"North won the opening lead with the club king and led the ace of hearts, East's king falling. The queen then caught the jack. The next lead was a small diamond and East passed it up, never dreaming that the ten spot on the board would hold the trick."

"After running all the hearts and discarding clubs and diamonds (except the ace) from his own hand North took the spade finesse and, lo and behold, ended up with seven no trump! I felt as if I had been given a reprieve from the death-house!"

—Mrs. B. P. St. Louis.
Well, all's well that ends well. I must say, however, that if I had led three no trump instead I would have been even more scared than my correspondent was. Moreover, holding the South cards, I would jump to four hearts over one no trump whether I was playing with Casper Milquetoast or Atilla the Hun!

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST
By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

Hugo belongs to that group in society who are emotional misfits. They are frowned upon and treated like lepers. Be sure you aren't guilty of predisposing your children to see you enter this psychological no-man's land.

CASE L-190: Hugo G., aged 21, is a professor's son.

"I've never had much to do with girls," he confessed nervously. "And I never had many friends. But I seem to value friendships far beyond the viewpoint of other people."

"I'd literally die for a friend. I select a boy and pal around with him to the exclusion of everybody else. If he has no money, I share my pocketbook with him. I give him my car to use."

"But my boy friend usually bleeds me for all the money he can get and after he has affronted me for months, I finally get the point and look elsewhere for another pal."

"Dr. Crane, what is wrong with me? What can I do to lead a normal life?"
DIAGNOSIS:
This young man has never done anything sexually wrong. He has been brought up in an idealistic type of home. His father was always so preoccupied that he never was a pal for the boy.

The youngster grew up feeling somewhat ostracized, because he wasn't adept in boys games. His mother had died in his infancy. Hugo became his father's shadow. He had a very lonely childhood.

Our emotional development proceeds through several stages. At the beginning we are egocentric, meaning that the world is our oyster. This is the infancy stage.

Then we reach the parental stage, wherein we include our parents as important personages in our lives. Next, we arrive at the gang or homosexual level, using the word "homosexual" without its adult sexual connotation.

The Gang Stage
At this time we pal around with our own sex almost exclusively. Boys have no use for girls, and they dislike boys. Sooner or later, however, we enter puberty and then proceed to the heterosexual stage of emotional growth, wherein we focus our attention and affection on the opposite sex.

Probably 90 per cent of us become adults in emotional growth, meaning heterosexuals. But from 5 to 10 per cent remain fixated at the gang stage. They simply don't grow up emotionally.

Hugo is a good example of a man who is an adult in years but a child in his emotional age. He has remained at the gang or homosexual level.

This is no disgrace, nor adequate reason for society's looking on him with horror as if he were a leper. It simply means that his environment did not predispose him to normal emotional development.

Homosexual Adults
At the age of 10 years, it is normal to be homosexual, or most interested in one's own sex. At 21, however, it is not the normal thing.

The best cure for homosexuality is prevention. Never let a boy or girl become so aloof from social contacts and so surrounded by his own sex at the age of puberty that it misses the wholesome influences which build heterosexual attitudes.

Boarding schools, therefore, may often be dangerous. And girls brought up by an all-feminine environment or boys who lack mothers and sisters may be predisposed to stop at the gang or homosexual level of development.

It is never too late for an adult homosexual to grow up emotionally, but it requires more perseverance than most of them will spend.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

The youngsters of the family take just as much delight in having their own beauty aids, as the oldsters.

Toys are such general gifts for children. They usually get more than they appreciate from doing friends and relatives. So mother can be a bit practical in her gifts, (without depriving her children of the smallest bit of holiday thrill) by buying amusing grooming aids which come adorably wrapped in Christmas wrappings.

Soaps carved and sculptured to resemble Santa himself, all the fairy tale figures and animals of the zoo. Soaps with neck and wrist cords for shower and bath which delight youngsters no end. Soap story book characters with accompanying tales; wee tot sets of talcum, cream and cotton in pretty containers and boosting purity; amusingly decorated dresser sets for the young lady's very own use—comb, mirror and brush.

Junior would be very proud to own brushes like Dad's, or a leather case manicuring set which is definitely masculine. It might serve as inspiration to keep his nails clean! He might also appreciate a pocket comb in a case, a special tooth brush whose bristles wouldn't soften, accompanied by cleansing powder or paste. There are elegant masculine towels and wash cloths to inflate his growing ego, and if he is nearing the shaving stage why not medicated shaving preparations? A brush? A safety razor?

As we get to the teen age there is a galaxy of gifts for both sexes. Fitted traveling cases, lined with oil skin for the male, and very smart locker accommodations. Whether he will confess to it or not, he adores pine scented baths and an out-door cologne for after shaving. Good brushes, usually monogrammed, the more happier he will be.

Sister's Passion
Sister, as you know, likes everything that comes in pretty packages. Her passion is perfume. Lots of it. But almost any good cosmetic thrills her and no matter how many lipsticks, compacts and evening bags she now has, she is always eager to possess more.

So again your local cosmetic counter will help greatly in solving your gift problems. And as far as the family is concerned, you are killing two birds with one stone. Thrilling them with your choice and giving them something they actually need and can use!

"Cosmetic for the College or Business Girl," might give you a gift inspiration. Send a stamped (3-cent) self-addressed envelope with your request and address me care of this paper.

Curiosity is the force that drives children to learn about the world and all that is in it. They come into the world as complete strangers. They have to get whatever information they need through their senses. The urge to do this is strong because Nature intends her children to learn as fast as possible what most concerns them, the sight, feeling, taste, smell, heat, temperature, sound, and use of what they meet. Each child has to do this for himself.

Telling him about things, letting him read about them, would not serve during the first six years of his life. During that period he must learn by using his senses. He must be active, tireless, and very inquisitive. Grown people, having long outgrown this stage, and settled into routines which they believe to have been born with them, are annoyed, sometimes frightened, by this activity and interest in their children.

Early in their lives, children explore their own bodies. They must if they are to know they have them and learn how to use them. Have you ever seen a baby discover his own hand? Seen with what interest he looks at it, plays with it? Bit by bit his interest and knowledge spreads over his body until he knows it rather well. Then he begins to see what he can do with it. But the first stage of this learning is prompted, promoted into being by his curiosity.

By the time he is three or four, he begins to be curious about other bodies. He looks with interest at his mother and father, brothers and sisters. Girls and boys alike, have this interest. It is better to allow the little child to become familiar with the appearance of his father and mother, with the sight of brother or sister, undressed, in that way they learn, without the eagerness of the delayed driver, about the bodies of boys and girls, men and women.

If this knowledge comes early it comes as a matter of fact much the way that the fact of the four legs of the cat, comes. And with about the same weight in the child's mind. He, and she, are gathering facts, information, that in time to come will act as a working base for the collection of other facts, and their interpretation. There is no sex, in the full meaning of the term, associated with this fact gathering. It is difficult for grown people to understand that, but it is so. If they do not put sex into the situation it remains absent. Any sign of its presence indicates an adult contribution, and a mistaken one.

Little children who have not learned about the difference between boys' and girls' bodies will, likely to conduct personal investigations. Because their development has been discouraged at home they make a secret of them. This explains why, every once in a while, a mother is shocked to learn of this activity in the garage, or behind the sand box.

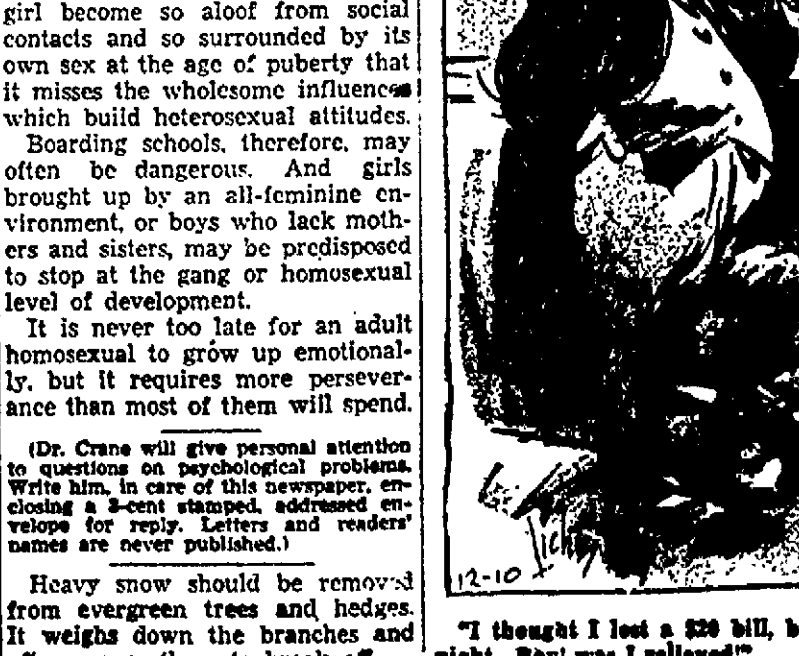

There is nothing to be alarmed about. This is an indication of an unsatisfied curiosity. Let the children look at the baby, tell him anything he wants to know in plain, clear words, no decorations. Take him to the art galleries. Prevent any trouble by providing satisfying experiences in the very beginning.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, inclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

A famous cook offers this suggestion for bread stuffing for turkey: Cut white bread into slices about half an inch thick. Butter each slice, discard the crusts and cut the slices into half-inch cubes. The bread is then ready for the seasonings. She thinks the butter flavors the bread better when added this way.

Chapter 17
Oh, Fool, Fool!
DAM read the scrap of paper. "Eleven o'clock," he said reflectively. "Where did you find it?"

"In one of those chairs in the lounge," Mrs. Flower explained portentously. "It was tucked under the seat cushion. Eleven o'clock. Too bad it wasn't dated. Or signed. Still—it is a clue."

"Yes, a clue. I'm very much indebted to you, Mrs. Flower." Adam sounded harassed. It was not entirely Mrs. Flower, I surmised, though she had that effect on people. He was getting nowhere and the hours were passing. How far he was exceeding his authority in detaining all these people, only he could know. They would be growing restive. But somewhere among them was a murderer, and time might play into that one person's hands.

Across the balcony there was motion. It brushed the fringe of my vision and vanished before I could turn. What had it been, a shadow? The reflection of a passing car? Or someone?

I strained my eyes and ears to catch some identifying trace of a presence. Whatever had moved was still. Yet I had the feeling that someone was lurking there across the gallery—in the shadows or behind the closed door of one of the unoccupied guest rooms.

Almost without thinking I rose to my feet and stood listening, tense. I stole one quick glance at the door of the strange girl's room which had been within my range of vision all the time I was listening at the head of the stairs. Then I began edging around the well of the dance floor, keeping well back from the balcony railing. The central chandelier which hung high above me had not been relighted since the ballroom dance; the stage lights and the lamps which dotted the lounge provided ample illumination downstairs, and the light, rising diffusely, cast the shadow of the balcony itself partway up the walls that surrounded it. In this shadow I was hidden from below. But to anyone on the same level as I, I was as conspicuous as the lesser illumination, I would provide an easy target.

I thought about that for a moment, but I couldn't feel particularly menaced. Perhaps (foolhardy people are simply conceited—the most vivid imagination balks at picturing its own extinction.) Halfway around I did pause, however, remembering my promise to stay with the sick girl I had not been very faithful to that promise. Perhaps I should go back. I might be on a fool's errand.

And then I heard a stifled moan so near me that my heart seemed to turn completely over. One step brought me to the closed door of the room from which that voice had come.

Some instinct prompted me to stand clear of the door as I swung it open. But nothing came hurtling at me, no bullet whined over my head. There was no sound, no movement, no indication of life within; and presently, feeling rather foolish, I unfatigued myself from the wall and peered cautiously in at the wide-open door.

So Trustingly
The room was like that other which I had left a few minutes before—the same furniture, the same absence of ornament, the same bleak efficiency. And at first glance it was in perfect order. No one was there, nothing seemed out of place—or not quite. A second glance, as my eyes accustomed themselves to the deeper gloom, discerned a dark shadow just beyond the foot of the bed—a long, motionless shadow that bulked as big as a slight woman's body.

I felt for the wall switch inside the door, remembered that there was only a light bracket that turned on at the fixture. I could see it across one corner of the room well away from the bed and that motionless shadow. Two steps would take me to it. Something keener than my mind was warning me. I left the door wide open, riveting my eyes on that shape on the floor. At the first faint movement I could be gone. Then I took those two careful steps.

The thing on the floor did not move. But the air in the room stirred faintly for a moment and the dim light grew dimmer. My hand was on the switch of the wall fixture. I turned it frantically back and forth, but nothing happened. I could still see, dimly, that the prone shape was motionless.

An instant too late I realized that I had been tricked. But before I could whirl or cry out something black and voluminous engulfed me—something abominably soft and clinging that wound itself tightly around my throat, around my arms, trussing me as securely as a coil for the branding, muffling me as completely as a gag. I felt the knot jerked tight between my shoulders. Then along my ankles, where my fetters left off, I felt again that brief current of air and, faintly through the muffling folds, heard the key turn in the lock.

The realization of my criminal foolishness gave me a strength I had not known I possessed. I fought savagely at the coccinelle wrappings. Oh, fool! fool! I had deserted my post, walked so trustingly into the trap. Behind the door—that was where the danger had been hiding; and I had turned my back on it. A woman's life would probably pay for this.

Half sobbing, I twisted and tore, bit and squirmed, and inch by inch the bonds worked upward from my forearms until I could use my hands. Velvet—the stuff was velvet. Someone's evening wrap. The thought passed briefly through my mind. Then I tore the thing from my head and threw it across the room, staggering to my feet gasping air into my starved lungs.

There was a strong streak of light above the door—the wooden transom open a crack. Could I get out that way? Or should I scream for Adam? It was too late for secrecy. I needed help—at once.

In the brief instant of hesitation the crack of light vanished, and from the dance floor rose the shrieks of women and the confused babble of voices.

The lights were out! "Too late!" I pounded and kicked at the door and added my voice to the clamor outside. But what chance had I of being heard? The door was closed, and I was shouting above the stage door. Adam! Adam! Adam!

I gave it up and leaned hopelessly against the door. What good could I do now, anyway? With the crazy monotony of a cracked phonograph record words were repeating themselves in my mind. "Too late. Too late. Too late."

Suddenly I froze into listening silence. Someone had come noiselessly along the gallery, had paused on the other side of the door and was drawing furtive, panting breaths like a runner forced to rest, yet wary of pursuers. Instinct warned me not to speak or move, not to seek rescue here. Then something clinked lightly on the floor at my feet; and there was silence on the other side of the door.

The key—it must have been the key. I did not take time to wonder why it had been returned to me. I screamed again, with all the voice I could muster, and dropped to my knees, groping in the dark. I found it almost at once and my fingers closed on it convulsively. Nightmares clumsy. I yet managed to find the keyhole. I had the door open and was in the hall when the finger of light searched me out from the encircling darkness. "Kay! Thank God!" said Adam's voice, and the circle of light swooped to the floor between us. "You're all right!" I heard you screaming.

His voice, I saw, was a little and the light danced at my feet.

"The murderer," I gasped hysterically. "He—it was here an instant ago. He locked me in that room, then the lights went out and he threw the key over the transom—he can't have got far!"

"A man?" Adam asked quickly. "I—I don't know. It—it was somebody."

And then I saw how hopeless it was. There were people on each side of us, they had come like moths to the light. I saw Mrs. Flower peering excitedly around Adam's arm. Behind her the Shaws, looking almost comically surprised. Miss Orpington had come up behind me and was just standing there, her eyes gleaming and a funny half smile on her lips.

"Nobody passed me," she said brightly. "I was right at the foot of the dressing-room stairs and I stood still and yelled until I saw a light up here. You're sure the door was locked?"

There was no mistaking the skepticism in her voice. I stepped closer to Adam.

Adam said, "Shaw, get out to the cars and find some flashlights, then get busy and find the fuse box—I think it's backstage."

"It is," said Shaw. "Barney's back there with Elizabeth, making coffee. If it's in the box he'll have it fixed—I heard him stumbling around and swearing a minute before I came up."

"Adam," I whispered urgently "the girl—"

His eyes met mine, and there was apprehension in them too. (Copyright, 1938)

Menasha Will Pay $89,584 of County, State Tax for 1939

City Clerk Receives Notice of Increase of $5,000 Over 1938

Menasha — The city of Menasha will contribute $89,584.38 to the Winnebago county budget of $626,918.59, according to the notice received by City Clerk Walter J. Dougherty from A. E. Hedke, Winnebago county clerk. The sum represents an increase of approximately $5,000 over the amount the city paid to the county last year, Mr. Dougherty said.

Of the $89,584.38 to be paid to the county, $2,956.55 represents Menasha's share of the tax assessed on Winnebago county by the state. Menasha's share of the tax is 12.84 per cent of the total county tax based on a recommended assessed value of $14,785,215.

The council last year set a tax rate of $34 per $1,000 in order to raise a levy of $428,101.60. The estimated expenses for operation of the city during 1938 were $692,567.79 but receipts from licenses and fees, state gasoline tax, income and inheritance tax and other sources cut down the amount to be raised by taxation in the city.

May Keep Old Rate Although the city's share of the county tax will be higher and several city departments have presented requests for increased budgets, the council may be able to get by without raising the tax rate above $34. The city this year has an increase in assessed valuation upon which to levy the tax. The increase is $12,200 from last year when the assessed valuation was $13,268,300.

The 1939 budget and tax rate will be set by the council at an adjourned meeting Monday night at the city hall. The council adjourned its regular meeting Tuesday night to that time pending the approval of the county levy by the board of supervisors.

Report 50 Per Cent Increase in Donations to Menasha Chapter

Menasha — An increase of 50 per cent in donations this year over last year for the Menasha chapter of the American Red Cross is indicated in the final report of Mrs. Andrew J. Hopfensperger, roll call chairman. Total membership and contributions this year amounted to $1,000.55.

Memberships likewise showed an increase over last year. Late reports have brought the increase over last year to 46 per cent. Of the money received, half is to be forwarded to the national chapter while the other half will remain in the treasury of the Menasha chapter and will be available for local relief and emergencies.

Mrs. Hopfensperger expressed gratification for the response made by the Menasha people to the roll call drive, which was one of the most successful in recent years. She also expressed her appreciation for the cooperation of the ward captains and workers who helped to make the drive a success.

County Has 40 Miles of Fence, 35 Pieces of Equipment

Menasha — The Winnebago county highway department is ready for whatever snowfalls the winter may bring, according to E. M. Bird, county highway commissioner. The highway department has completed the erection of approximately 40 miles of snow fence located at strategic points in the county.

In addition, the county has 35 powerful pieces of snow fighting equipment. The apparatus includes 17 large trucks equipped with V-type plows, five small trucks equipped with plows, five large tractors fitted with plows and eight power graders.

The county board of supervisors provided $25,000 for snow removal during the coming year. That sum is intended to take care of the 289 miles of county trunk roads that the county maintains. The state trunk and federal system embraces 128 miles on which the county can call on the state for the complete cost of keeping those roads open.

A standing crew of 55 men is ready for emergency duty at all times. A reserve crew of about 30 men can be called if needed.

Harry Stuhldreher Ridicules '10-Cent Football' in Talk at Neenah All-Athletic Banquet

Neenah — Ridiculing "10-cent football" which has been proposed by Dr. Hutchins, president of Chicago university, Harry Stuhldreher, athletic director and head football coach at Wisconsin university, urged nearly 200 persons attending the annual Neenah High school all-athletic banquet Friday night at the Valley Inn not to condemn a game which hasn't changed fundamentally in the last 20 years although a nation has become sports-conscious.

The quarterback for Notre Dame's immortal Four Horsemen actually was vitriolic in his condemnation of the "grandstand quarterbacks." He urged, "Be careful of your criticism of a player, especially a quarterback when he apparently makes a mistake in calling a play." The coach was scathing in his criticism of those "second guessers" who piled blame on Steve Sisko, Notre Dame quarterback, for the alleged error in the Irish-Southern California game. A near-capacity crowd attended the testimonial banquet for the local high school athletes during which letters were awarded to 25 football players and a manager by Coach George Christoph. S. F. Shattuck, vice president of Kimberly-Clark corporation, was toastmaster, and Norton J. Williams, president of the board of education gave a short talk.

Introducing the guest speaker, Mr. Shattuck said that he declined an invitation to go to New York to hear Anthony Eden, famed English statesman, in order to hear Coach Stuhldreher.

Now Faster Game

"Football hasn't changed essentially in 20 years," the Badger coach said. "There are a few new wrinkles, it is a faster game and more open; otherwise, it's the same game as was played a score of years ago." The difference is that 20 years ago, a crowd of 5,000 attending a grid game

BOOK REVIEW

'Best Loved Poems' Is Worthy of Book Shelf in American Home

By Jean Wiley Thickens

"BEST LOVED POEMS" by Hazel Felleman.

Shades of our youth! What youngster who was born during the gay nineties or the early 1900's has not thrilled to the metres of "Casey at the Bat," "Twas the Night Before Christmas" or James Whitcomb Riley's beloved "That Old Sweetheart of Mine?"

Hazel Felleman, for 30 years editor of the Queries and Answers page of the New York Times Book Review section has dedicated her anthology of favorite poems to Adolph Ochs—publisher of the Times—"with affectionate memories of 30 years as a friend and member of his editorial staff."

Miss Felleman has made her selection from the countless thousands of inquiries which have come to her from readers for their favorite poems whose title or authorship they have forgotten but whose sentiments ring a bell in their earliest memories of childhood and adolescence. She has classified them most helpfully under various headings such as love and friendship, inspiration, poems that tell a story, home and mother, patriotism and war, humor, memory, grief, animals and nature. She has also included an index by first lines so that it is a simple matter to locate one's favorites amongst the many hundreds included in her book.

Revises Memories
It is like turning back the pages of an old photograph album to flip idly through the leaves of this collection and recreate scenes from bygone days. No eighth grader of a generation or two ago was deemed eligible for graduation until he could stand up before his classmates and recite—with appropriate gestures—"Woodman, Spare that Tree," "The Charge of the Light Brigade" or "Old Ironsides," the latter composed by Oliver Wendell Holmes when it was being proposed to break up that famous old battle ship.

The World war is represented by such poems as John McCrae's "In Flanders Field," Alan Seeger's "I Have a Rendezvous with Death" and "The Unknown Soldier." It is to be deplored that Miss Felleman omitted George M. Cohan's immortal "Over There."

One experiences an unaccountable nostalgia when rereading—perhaps for the first time in a quarter of a century—such beloved old favorites as Henry Wordsworth's "There was a little girl, she had a little curl, Right in the middle of her forehead" or that delectable Dutch Lullaby which begins "Wyken, Blyken and Nod one night, Sailed off in a wooden shoe." Only those who have experienced the thrill of reciting those childhood favorites to their own youngsters know how much real enjoyment those simple old rhymes can offer. For practical use, as well, Miss Felleman's anthology is an invaluable source book for speakers, teachers, authors and even politicians. "Best Loved Poems of the American People" should occupy a prominent place on the book shelves of every educated American.

Terrors Defeated In Valley Opener

Lose to Green Bay West's Wildcats in Thrilling Battle

BY GORDON MCINTYRE
GREEN BAY—Green Bay West high school cagers staged something of a mild upset in the Fox River Valley conference opener here last night by defeating Appleton, 23 to 21. The outcome is called an upset only because Appleton had won two pre-conference games while West dropped a decision to St. Norbert High school. Based on the exhibition last night, however, the Bays were playing possum when they met the Saints, or they just didn't give a whoop.

Led by a giant guard, Gordon Muster, West had a tall team, fairly smooth passing aggregation and a forward who was less than an inch this side of being a sharp shooter. And really, that's almost enough for any team.

Muster was the biggest trouble to the Appleton squad. He garnered practically every rebound off the Appleton board and then maneuvered the ball out of danger. In his spare moments he was a veritable blanket over Bill Besch, Appleton center, and his guarding was so good Besch might just as well have missed himself the effort Muster seldom missed intercepting Besch's pivot and hook shots.

With about three minutes to go Muster left the game on personals but Appleton failed to take advantage of the break. Edwards, Muster's running mate, was the cause of that for he took over the burden of directing the team and left nothing to be desired.

Terrors Lack Height
Appleton looked like a contender despite the defeat. The only thing seriously wrong with the Terrors was their lack of height. And they couldn't do much about that. They handled the ball as well as the Wildcats, they got a lot of shots and worked their plays well enough to have overwhelmed anyone else.

Warren Buesing led Appleton's scorers with three baskets and a free throw for seven points. Bob Bailey followed with six points but only two were from a field goal. Besch got two baskets on followup shots. Aside from that Appleton's play featured Bob Morris' directing.

For the Bays, Burch, a red-headed chunky forward, was the scoring ace. He rattled five baskets through the hoop.

West got the jump on the Terrors as the game opened and obviously was primed to the utmost. It rushed the Terrors, hurried their shots and often times beat them to the punch by intercepting passes. West took a 2 to 1 lead but Appleton came back to lead 4 to 2. Then Burch tied the score on a follow-up shot. Edwards plunked a rather long shot to put West in front, and when Burch got two in a row, West led 10 to 4. Two free throws by Bob Bailey and baskets by Besch and Buesing brought Appleton back into the game and the score stood 10-all at the quarter.

Terrors in Front
Buesing scored with Morris getting an assist as the second quarter opened and Appleton went into the lead. Buesing added another two points on a one-handed toss but Burch plunked a shot from the corner. West added a free throw after when Besch and Fraser scored on followup shots and the Terrors led by 18 to 13 at the half. Appleton played its best ball during the stanza.

Neither team looked so hot in the third quarter but Appleton appeared to have slipped farthest. A free throw and a long shot by Burch cut Appleton's lead to 18-16. The Terrors then got two free throws. Edwards tossed a long shot and Gass a free throw for West and the score was 21 to 20 where it remained until the end of the quarter.

The teams started around for the first three minutes of the final quarter with neither doing much. Defensive play featured because neither team could break in near the hoop. Finally Muster cashed in on a long shot that tied the score with about five minutes left to play and it was the signal for every good West follower to go wild.

From then on the game was a riot with basketball tossed out the window and every man for himself. Appleton was getting in near the hoop often enough but Muster was grabbing rebounds and putting the ball out of danger.

With three minutes left to go Muster and Bob Bailey collided under the Appleton hoop and a double foul was called. Neither had scored his free throw and Muster left the game on personals. It appeared to be a break for Appleton but Edwards stepped into the breach and garnered the ball or tapped it to his mates on jump balls and West continued to dominate play. When Besch sank a followup shot for West the roof rose right off the gymnasium.

Two minutes and forty seconds of play remained at that stage two minutes and forty seconds that turned out to be wild, thrilling and fatal to Appleton for it never got the chance that would have tied

NO HIDDEN MEANING HERE, SWEDE?

When Harry Stuhldreher, University of Wisconsin grid coach, spoke before a joint meeting of the Clintonville Rotarians, Lions and the high school football and basketball squads, he was presented with an unusual gift. Arthur "Suede" Johnson, the local coach, presented a cheese football to him from the world's greatest cheesemaker, P. H. Kasper, who resides near Clintonville. Pictured on the left is Johnson with Stuhldreher on the right.

High School Reserves In 24 to 12 Victory

Appleton High school reserve basketball team, coached by Myron Samuels, defeated Green Bay West reserves, 24 to 12, at the Bay last night in a preliminary game. The Terrors hoped to lead all the way. Powers, guard, topped the scorers with six points while Kliefoth, guard, had five.

THE IZAAK Walton League's championship trap shoot will get underway at 9:30 Sunday morning at the Leonard shooting range on Highway 41, opposite Butte des Morts golf course.

Wisconsin, M. U. Face Formidable Quints Tonight

Badgers Show Against Notre Dame, Hilltoppers Against Chicago

By The Associated Press
WISCONSIN and Marquette, two major colleges, face formidable out-of-state basketball foes on their home floors tonight, Wisconsin opposing Notre Dame University at Madison, and Marquette engaging the University of Chicago at Milwaukee.

Most of the other state colleges, however, relaxed after a busy schedule which called nine of them into action Friday night and showed the cagers rapidly were approaching mid-season sharp-shoot form.

In the St. Norbert - Milwaukee Teachers game, the players hit the backboards with sufficient accuracy to total 101 points.

Friday night's results:
At Milwaukee—St. Norbert of De Pere 57, Milwaukee Teachers 44.
At Platteville—La Crosse Teachers 41, Platteville Teachers 40.
At River Falls—Huron, S. D., 27, River Falls Teachers 49.
At Menomonie, Wis.—Central Teachers of Stevens Point 39, Stout Institute 32.
At Superior—St. Johns of Collegeville, Minn., 41, Superior Teachers 30.
At Carlisle, Pa.—Beloit, Wis., college 36, Dickinson 47.
St. Norbert college averaged two defeats suffered last season by crushing the Milwaukee Teachers, 57 to 44, after compiling a top-heavy 30-17 lead at the half. Milwaukee rallied in the closing minutes but never threatened seriously. Floriana, St. Norbert forward, was high scorer with eight field goals and two free throws.

La Crosse in Close Win
The La Crosse Teachers barely nosed out a 41 to 40 non-conference victory over the Platteville Peds when the latter pulled up to within striking distance on two baskets scored from mid-floor by Harry Brostrom as the game neared its end. Brostrom garnered 18 points while George Galtion paced the winners with 18. Platteville led at the half, 18 to 15.

The River Falls Teachers successfully repelled an invading Huron college squad from South Dakota, defeating the visitors 49 to 27. Schwartz, River Falls center, scored three successive field goals in the first five minutes of the game and the falls cagers went into the second half leading, 22 to 11. Herthar, Huron center, made four field goals and three free throws for the losers.

Stout and the Central Teachers of Stevens Point battled to a 16-all tie in the first half of their game at Menomonie, Wis., but Central sprinted into an eight-point lead as the second period opened and stayed out in front to win, 39 to 32. Warner, Stevens Point forward, paced his teammates with three baskets and seven gift shots.

St. Johns of Collegeville, Minn., had little difficulty in disposing of the Superior Teachers, 41 to 30. Beloit college opened its tour of the eastern United States by losing to Dickinson college at Carlisle, Pa., 47 to 36.

Graduation Will Strike Hard at Stars of 1938 Football Parade

NEW YORK—(AP)—Graduation next June will strike hard at many of the teams that dominated the 1938 college football parade. But a glance over the season's performances and rosters make it obvious that in 1939 the nation's top teams will come up with their usual array of talent.

Four of the teams that should be best-equipped in the backfield next season, with little need to rely on oncoming sophomores, are Notre Dame, Fordham, Cornell and Villanova.

The Irish, chief practitioners of gridiron mass production, will lose some of their star operatives, but they'll still have such human ballistics as Steve Sisko, Ben Sheridan, Bob Saggau, Harry Stevenson, Milt Pieplu, and Lou Zontini.

Graduation will take its heaviest toll at Texas Christian, where Davy O'Brien, Ki Aldrich and I. B. Hale will get their diplomas.

Pitt, losing three-quarters of its "dream" backfield, will have to

Kaws Play Three Quarters Before Scoring Bucket

St. Mary Wins 26-19; Use Reserves in Final Frame

BY RANDY HAASE
ST. MARY—St. Mary High school cagers scored their first victory of the season Friday night, overwhelming Kaukauna High school by a 26 to 19 score at St. Mary gymnasium. Although the Kaws did score 19 points, they were held without a field goal during the first three quarters of the game, breaking through for five field goals in the final quarter against the Zephyr reserves to cut down the margin.

The Zephyrs never were headed after Griesbach opened the scoring with a field goal. Laux was the scoring star of the game with four baskets and two free throws for 10 points. Frunskue accounted for 7 points before he acquired his fourth personal foul in the third quarter.

Giordana's free throw was the only point for the Kaws in the first quarter while Laux added two baskets to the goal by Griesbach to put the Zephyrs ahead 6 to 1. At half time the Zephyrs were leading by a 17 to 4 margin.

Just Free Throws
Giordana, Swedberg and Alger counted free throws for Kaukauna in the second quarter. In that period Resch and Prunskue counted two field goals each and Laux counted a field goal and a free throw for the Zephyrs.

The Zephyr attacked slowed somewhat during the third quarter, accounting for only 7 points. However, Kaukauna was held to only three free throws with Alger, Giordana and Swedberg connecting from the charity stripe. For the Zephyrs, Laux scored his fourth field goal and a free throw while Prunskue counted three free throws and Coenen converted on one. At one time in the quarter the Zephyrs held an 18 point lead.

The Kaws cut down that margin in the fourth quarter with some long shots when the Zephyr reserves scored only two free throws on tosses by Fleweger and Coenen. Giordana scored his fourth free throw and Belsch counted the first field goal with Meitner adding a free throw before Fleweger dropped in his free throw to make the score 25 to 11. Bloch retaliated with a field goal after which Coenen made one of two gift attempts to put the score at 26 to 13. Derus, Ranquette and Koch added field goals for the Kaws before the game ended.

Rough Game
The game was rough with poor ball handling, particularly in the first quarter. The Zephyrs made 8 out of 18 gift shot attempts while the Kaws converted 9 out of 15.

The Zephyr reserves likewise turned in their first victory of the year, defeating the Kaw reserves 24 to 18. The Zephyrs trailed 3 to 2 at the quarter but went ahead 9 to 5 at the half. They increased their lead to 18 to 11 at the end of the third quarter and maintained that advantage.

Negro Boxer Stabbed; Condition Is Critical
New York—(AP)—Tiger Jack Fox, Negro light heavyweight boxer who police said was stabbed during an altercation with a woman, was pronounced in a critical condition today at Harlem hospital.

Physicians said it was doubtful whether Fox, if he recovered, would ever be able to box again. He had been scheduled to meet Melio Bertina next month for New York state recognition a slight heavyweight champion.

Police said a woman they booked as Edna Boyd, 23, a Negro maid, told them she had stabbed Fox in a defenseless early yesterday in a Seventh avenue hotel. She was held on a charge of felonious assault.

Hotel officials broke down the door after they heard the woman's screams. Hospital physicians said the boxer, stabbed below the heart, was weak from loss of blood.

1936—Green Bay Packers, 21; Boston Redskins, 6, at New York.
1937—Washington Redskins, 28; Chicago Bears, 21, at Chicago.

NEW YORK—Green Bay's Packers and the New York Giants will meet here tomorrow to determine the world's professional football champions, 1938 variety.

The occasion will be the sixth annual meeting of the Western and Eastern division title winners in the playoff for the National Football League championship, and the Ed Thorp Memorial trophy. The Packers will represent the West and the Giants the East, the scene of the action will be the Polo Grounds, and a capacity crowd of upwards of 57,000 is expected to witness the struggle.

The Giants qualified for the playoff last Sunday by beating the Washington Redskins, 36-0, which gave them a season's record of eight victories, one tie and two defeats. The Philadelphia Eagles whipped the Detroit Lions, 21-7, the same day to nudge the Packers, who had been idle since Nov. 20, into the playoff. The Packers came up to the championship scramble with a season's record of eight victories and three defeats.

Giants Beat Packers
Oddly enough, the Giants were Green Bay's last opponents, the Packers being beaten 1-3. However, the Giants will be no better than a 6 to 5 choice to repeat, it being a matter of record that Green Bay outplayed the New Yorkers by a wide margin. Tuffy Lusk, the Packers' star, placed kick field goal attempt, but it came back through the entire Packer team for one of the Giants' touchdowns. Mel Hein intercepted a Packer forward pass and went all the way to account for the other one.

Add to this the fact that Don Hutson, the phenomenal pass catching end, and Bob Monnett, their first-string left halfback, were unable to play because of injuries and the reason for the short-price on the Giants in the return engagement is clearly indicated. Hutson and Monnett will be in there tomorrow.

It will be New York's fourth and Green Bay's second appearance in playoff competition. Thus, one tradition will be broken as no team has won the title twice since the playoff system was introduced in 1933. The Giants lost, 23-21, to the Chicago Bears in 1933, beat the Bears, 30-13, in 1934 and were vanquished by Detroit, 26-7, in 1935. The Packers trounced the Boston Redskins, 21-6, in 1936.

The title playoff is similar in some respects to world's series baseball games, with the league president, Joe F. Carr, supervising the play and financial arrangements. The players will receive the major portion of the proceeds. Their pool is 60 per cent of the net receipts, with 50 per cent going to the players of the contending teams and the other 10 per cent being divided equally between the players of the divisional runner-up teams, Detroit in the West and Washington in the East.

Each contending club receives 15 per cent of the remaining 40 per cent of the net receipts and the league's share is 10 per cent. The contending teams' share—50 per cent—is divided into two parts, 60 per cent going to the winner and 40 per cent to the loser.

Two Games Sunday On St. John Floor
High School Team Will Meet St. Lawrence, A. A. Tackles Oshkosh

Little Chute—Two game contests are scheduled for Sunday afternoon at St. John auditorium with St. Lawrence college of Calvary meeting St. John Dutchmen, leaders in the Catholic conference, while Little Chute A.A. will meet Phillips "66" of Oshkosh.

St. John will be without the services of its regular center who twisted his knee. Coach Miron is pinning his hopes on Jerry Hietpas to fill Vanden Heuvel's shoes at the pivot position. Hietpas is only a freshman but has plenty of experience.

In the A.A.-Phillips "66" contest, Little Chute will have to extend itself to the limit. Oshkosh has a rangy squad with Red Kramer, Moose Reid, Hentz and Lowell in the six-foot-two class. They also have speed merchants led by Henry Binner, Fritz Denx and Gabert. Ky. Deux, captain, is a smart floor general and handles the team from the guard position.

Ki Aldrich, T. C. U., and Goldberg are Selected By Pirates

NEW YORK—(AP)—Sort of an all-America squad to end all ball seniors were on the National Professional Football league's draft list today, labelled as the "pro" prize prospects for next season.

Ki Aldrich, Texas Christian's great center, headed the list. He was the first player chosen by the Chicago Cardinals, who finished in the cellar of the Western division and received first choice in the drafting yesterday.

No players of prominence were missed but there were some surprises. For instance, Ralph Heikkinen, the Michigan guard who was named on most all-star selections, and who had disclosed a desire to play pro ball, dangled unclaimed until the Brooklyn Dodgers made their eleventh selection — after nearly 100 other players of varying ability had been snapped up.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

A Little Saturday Talk

During the past two weeks, we have had stories about Roman generals, rulers and poets. There is much more to be told about olden Roman customs, and today I am going to give a few paragraphs from the leaflet prepared about Rome some time ago. It is called "Rome and the Olden Romans," and runs in part as follows:

Roman boys and girls who reached the age of seven were believed to be old enough to start their primary school work. They learned reading, writing and arithmetic. The teacher read sentences aloud, and the pupils pronounced them after him. Wooden boards covered with wax were used for writing.

The teacher "first traced with a stylus the letters that served as a copy, then guided the pupil's hand with his own until the child learned to form the letters."

The "stylus" was a wooden or metal rod, usually five or six inches long, with a sharp end which was used to make marks in the wax surface of the tablet. Each stylus had a blunt end which could be used for "erasing."

Double tablets, which would fold together, were popular. Older boys and girls learned to write with pen and ink. The pens were pieces of reed, pointed at one end, and the writing was done on sheets of "papyrus," the form of paper which had been invented in Egypt. The leaflet is a rather small one, but it has five illustrations, and among the other subjects it tells about are "Homes of the Romans," "When Romans Traveled," "Roman Books," "The Roman Theater" and "Roman Soldiers."

If you wish a copy of "Rome and the Olden Romans," you may have it for the asking if you send me a stamped envelope addressed to yourself. Remember that I receive many hundreds of letters, and there may be some delay in sending back the leaflet. Please write carefully, writing out the name of your city or village, state of province, also your own name in full with street and number or rural route. We do not want any mistakes in the mails if we can help it!

Inconvenienced the ticker tape. Transfers were around 450,000 shares for the two hours.

There was little change in the business picture, which continued moderately cheerful for the long term, but foreign tension seemed to have lessened a bit as a market brake and the notable drying up of tax selling in the last several sessions was thought to have attracted some traders to the buying side.

Steels, aircrafts, motors, mail orders and specialties were favored the greater part of the time, although none stopped very far out in front. Rails and utilities fared a slim groove. There were a few faint glimmers in evidence at the close.

Bonds were selectively higher and some commodities improved.

Steels had to contend with forecasts of another slump in mill operations next week, but a decline would be surprising to the financial district in view of slackening specifications prompted by inventory periods as the year ends.

Automotive shares were aided by comments of General Motors officials that this concern probably would maintain its November production rate of 200,000 units throughout December. This would represent the second largest December output in the history of the corporation.

Grain Prices in Slight Decline On Chicago Mart

Profit-Taking Considered As Factor in Quiet Dealings

Chicago —(P)— Grain prices backed down slightly today from the crest of a recent upturn which has carried wheat and corn values to the best levels in one or two months.

Profit-taking was a factor but a forecast for unsettled weather in the winter wheat belt during the week-end had some effect on selling. Trade was quiet, however, and the reaction revived support at fractional net declines.

Receipts were: wheat 84 cars, corn 86, oats 26.

Wheat closed 1-1/2 lower, Dec 64 1/2, May 67 1/2; corn unchanged to 1/2 down, Dec 51 1/2, May 52 1/2; oats 1/2 lower to 1/2 higher.

Hollywood Stars In Bond Inquiry

Summon Celebrities as Witnesses in Mail Fraud Case

New York —(P)—A bevy of Hollywood luminaries ranging from crooner Bing Crosby to millionaire producer Joe Schenck was drawn into the Philippine bond mystery inquiry today.

Thirteen subpoenas from the United States attorney's office here were on their way by plane toward the cinema capital to summon the celebrities as material witnesses in the mail fraud case of William F. Buckner, dapper young international financier.

The others called were Ronald Colman, Miriam Hopkins, Cary Grant, Frank Morgan, Phyllis Brooks, Binnie Barnes, Herbert Marshall, Leon Erroll, Nola Hahn, owner of the Hollywood Clover club, and scenarists Nick Carter and Jean Mogileski.

Buckner is charged with fraudulently obtaining large sums from fellow bondholders in the Philippine Railways company on the promise he could get the insular government to redeem the defaulted securities. His arrest last week resulted from a securities and exchange commission investigation of fluctuations of the bonds on the market last January.

J. Stuart Hyde, British film producer questioned by federal authorities when he landed from the liner yesterday, said he "knew everybody in Hollywood" and had introduced Buckner to many of the cinema notables. Authorities did not clarify the film figures' connection with the case.

Hyde, a long-time acquaintance of Buckner, said he knew nothing about his financial operations, but was held as what assistant United States Attorney William Maloney called "a very material witness." He was allowed to go to a hotel in the custody of detectives.

County Gets $33,007 In Tax Apportionments

Two checks for funds totaling $33,007.12 have been received by Miss Marie Ziegenhagen, Outagamie county treasurer, from the state treasurer's department. The money represents $32,023.71 as the apportionment of the power tax of the Wisconsin-Michigan Power company and $983.41 of the Wisconsin Public Service corporation.

Propose Ordinance to Cut Inspection Costs

An ordinance setting a minimum fee of 50 cents for inspection of any plumbing work requiring a permit has been proposed by George E. Gauslin, city plumbing inspector. A fee of $1 now is provided even for owners with only one fixture to inspect. The ordinance will be considered by the council at its next meeting.

Relief Department to Act as Clearing House

F. A. W. Hammond, city relief director, today again asked organizations planning to give Christmas baskets to needy families to use the relief department as a clearing house. The basket lists should be turned in to Miss Gladys Stolt of the relief accounting department as soon as possible so that checking may be started to avoid duplication.

Safety Campaigns Cut Traffic Toll, Survey Reveals

Reductions Made in Most Leading Cities of United States

By the Associated Press

Intensive, methodical safety campaigns have slashed sharply into the nation's traffic death toll this year.

A survey of 35 leading cities—all but one of them among the top 40 in population—showed today this situation for the week of December:

Ten cut their death toll by 40 per cent or more, compared with the same period of 1937.

At least 10 of the other 25 reducing their traffic mortality rate 15 to 35 per cent, with many others showing improvements and.

Only five apparently heading for an increased fatality list.

The nation's population centers have accepted with the "three E's"—enforcement, education and engineering—the challenge of the reckless driver, the jay-walking pedestrian.

The 69 per cent slash for Providence, R. I., where there were no fatalities for an 11-day stretch, placed it in the select list. Speeds there were reduced to 25 miles an hour throughout the city and enforced without exception.

Columbus, Ohio, among the leaders with 53.3 per cent less deaths than the same period last year, takes offenders to court immediately.

Other leaders, and their approximate percentage decreases in traffic deaths, included:

Cleveland 48.2; Birmingham, Ala., 46.1; Louisville, Ky., 47.2; Detroit 45; Dallas 41; Milwaukee and Buffalo 40; Newark, N. J., where as in New York city figures were available only for the first 10 months, showed a 60 per cent slash.

C. B. Abraham Is Relected Head of Conservation Body
Reports Issued on Activities During Year in Fremont Area
Fremont—The Fremont Conservation league held its annual meeting and election of officers Friday evening in the village hall. Officers elected for the coming year were: President, C. B. Abraham, reelected; vice president, George Sherburne; secretary-treasurer, Edwin Hammen, succeeding John Tovey; director, Arthur Hahn, to fulfill the three year term in place of C. H. Peters, who resigned.
During the last year the league was active in planting 20,000 black bass, 49,000 bluegills, croppies and perch in Partridge lake which were secured from the state department of fisheries. In addition 750 large mouth black bass of considerable size, obtained through the efforts of Senator F. Ryan Duffy from the United States bureau of fisheries, were planted.
Four hundred and twenty pheasant chicks were obtained from the state game farm of Poynette, Wis., and 50 matured pheasants were won by the league in feeding activities during the winter feeding contest sponsored by the state game farm. These birds were banded and released.
Plans were made to carry on a feeding program for the coming winter, and a committee was appointed to investigate shallow water inlets to the surrounding bayous to remedy the conditions where severe winters suffocate millions of fish. This will be one of the most vital programs to be carried on by the league.
It was also planned that the league will sponsor a party Tuesday evening in the Fremont village hall.
Through the cooperation of members the league held a fun festival and entertainment Nov. 13, in which funds were raised to carry on necessary work for the coming year and the league.
The league now has a membership of 107.

Week-end Digest of Business Activity In Appleton and Vicinity

Wide Experience Is Success Secret Of Leland Feavel

Knows Practical and Theoretical Sides of Decorating

Many books, good and bad, have been written on various phases of interior decoration. However, comparatively few people have the inclination or time to make an exhaustive study of interior decoration in its many applications nor have they the means to cultivate it on a grand scale. Ten years of painting experience, plus specialized painting schooling, qualifies Leland Feavel, interior decorator and painter, to provide the answers to the many personalized interior decorating problems which arise and actually perform the work personally with the assistance of his staff of expert painters.

Mr. Feavel, who has been associated with his two brothers and his father, has a wide range of painting and decorating experience that has seen him working in many homes in this community as well as various cities throughout the state of California. Consequently, Mr. Feavel has gained a broad knowledge of decoration because of his working in the many different points of the country.

It is a mistake to think of the walls of our home as an enclosure, designed slowly to protect us from the unforseen changes of weather or the prying eyes of neighbors. Mr. Feavel states. Nothing, he continues, can establish charm and character in your home as definitely

'World's Greatest' Insurance Sold by Nolan & Dohearty

Firm Combined With Valley Agencies for Double Service

Insurance in what is termed the "world's greatest automobile mutual" sounds mighty desirable, doesn't it? And, say Nolan & Dohearty of Valley Agencies, 128 N. Appleton street, that's precisely what automobile owners get in their policies issued in this territory through Nolan & Dohearty by Lumbermen Mutual Casualty company.

Sound savings on various types of insurance are available in Lumbermen Mutual policies, it is pointed out, and a talk with these Appleton representatives will give a new conception of insurance service and cost. For example, the prospective insurance buyer, or the policy holder who is not entirely satisfied with his present insurance set-up and cost, can get complete details on the financial strength, nationwide facilities of Lumbermen, and the dividends received by policyholders to reduce insurance costs. There is no obligation in securing this information, and a call to 6089, or to either James M. Nolan or John E. Dohearty personally will bring it promptly.

The recent consolidation of Nolan & Dohearty with Valley Agencies brings a splendid two-point service to insurance buyers as well as residents contemplating the purchase of a new car or who desire to borrow money on their present cars. The six point advantage of dealing with the firm on matters of such financing will be gladly outlined.

Fire insurance buyers can make savings through the firm as owners of fur coats and other items requiring specialized types of insurance.

Wood Made Available For Relief at Manawa

Manawa—The Little Wolf River Lumber company, through A. C. Lindsay, secretary-treasurer, has made available some 5,000 cords of wood in the town of Helvetia to needy families of the town of Little Wolf and the village of Manawa. The company logged about 60 acres of pine logs off this tract of land during the last summer, and there remains many cords of windfalls and tops of pine and hardwood. The wood lies on the ground in long lengths and needs only sawing and hauling to make it available to those who need and desire wood in this town and village.

A Christmas party for every boy and girl in central Waupaca county will be sponsored by the Lions club at Manawa next Saturday, Dec. 17. Santa Claus has arranged to be in Manawa that afternoon and will distribute hundreds of sacks of candy and nuts to every boy and girl who comes to town. Manager Ray Goglia of the local theatre has arranged to show a special matinee for the benefit of visitors here that afternoon.

The Dog Owner and His Dog

BY ALLAN KERR

In all the hustle and rush and mad scramble during the coming two weeks, and the worry about the right thing for Ma, Pa, Sissy and Buzzy, and maybe Sweetie-pie, there may be one little guy who might be forgotten. What are you going to give the dog for Christmas?

He is really quite an important part of the family circle and certainly shouldn't be neglected when the gifts are heaped beneath the big balsam and goodies are crammed above the fire-place. Although he may have caused a little trouble during the year, (who hasn't?) the dog has contributed much in pleasure, companionship and entertainment. So why not put him on the list right now while you are reminded of it.

And what shall you give him? That depends entirely on your own particular situation. If you have a St. Bernard or an equally huge great dane, those clever little wicker beds with washable mats will hardly interest you. Nor will the owner of a tiny Manchester terrier wish to order a bale of coarse cedar shavings for his pet.

Many Gifts Available

It should not be difficult, however, to find something to please any dog. The sporting goods stores, the pet supply shops, feed and department stores will offer plenty of suggestions if you will but pay them a visit while on the shopping tour. Many of the dog stores, too, stock items that will cause a full measure of canine contentment.

Perhaps the majority of dogs remain puppies in spirit during the greater part of their lives. For these, the various playthings and exercisers are as appropriate now as they were when the dogs were

Koch Photo Shop Is Gift Haven as Christmas Nears

Has Proper Gift for Every Person at Wide Range of Prices

Make it a photographic Christmas and you're sure to please. This is the opinion of scores of gift buyers who have consulted the Koch Photo Shop, 231 E. College avenue, Appleton's only exclusive photo shop, and one of the most complete in the valley.

The youngster with a yen to snap pictures can be pleased at little cost via the Koch line of reliable, low-priced cameras. Such lines as Eastman, Argus and Agfa offer a wide range in the lower price brackets. For the older gift recipient who has acquired more experience in taking pictures, these same manufacturers also produce fine equipment. In the line of "custom" camera equipment, Koch offers the higher priced Eastman line and the internationally famous Zeiss Ikon cameras and less immediate access to lines not carried in stock.

A wide variety of albums, film and photo supplies also offers the answer to gift givers, and enables the purchaser to secure an acceptable gift for—in the case of film—as little as a quarter. It is interesting to note that the survey reported in Life Magazine recently showed that a roll of film is one of the most highly acceptable of gifts priced under one dollar. Incidentally, Koch's stock of film is complete, containing most leading brands, and can be obtained in a wide range from the slower types to the new ultra fast emulsions.

The amateur movie-maker will find Koch's a veritable haven of supplies and information—just as the devotees of "still" pictures. Koch's also have equipment that will aid in the taking of indoor pictures through the long winter months.

The Koch shop is also noted for its photographic Christmas greetings and its commercial photography (both still and motion pictures) as well as for its photo finishing.

Home Sewing Gain Suggests Machine For Holiday Gift

Wiegand Has Selection Of White, National Electrics

The modern-minded woman is apparently more interested in sewing at home on a new electric machine than at any other time in years, is the opinion of the Wiegand and Sewing Machine Company, 113 N. Morrison street, Appleton. The company which Mr. John Wiegand has managed for more than 15 years has noted a demand for this equipment during the present winter season with the approach of the holidays that equals any in the history of the store.

For the average home Christmas, points out the Wiegand firm, ought to mean the addition of at least one serviceable household piece which will add to the enjoyment and convenience of the home. This, you will agree, is the practical and most sensible expenditure of your Christmas savings and judging from the numbers of people visiting the Wiegand store daily inspecting and purchasing new electric sewing machines many families are like-minded in regard to this idea.

A truly acceptable gift which women cannot help but appreciate is, of course, a new all-electric sewing machine which is available now in a variety of beautiful, attractive cabinets with every conceivable, practical attachment to facilitate and make possible all types of plain and fancy sewing. Smooth in action, easy to operate, and complete in its work-saving characteristics, the beautiful White Rotary and National sewing machines offered by the Wiegand firm remove all traces of wearisome toil from all sewing jobs.

Not only is the new electric sewing machine an efficient and necessary household article but it also enables housewives to obtain style in fashioning garments with greater ease and savings because of the many simplified attachments. Fusy frills or trim tailoring are equally easy to accomplish. It is easy, owners say, to use present-day patterns of the very latest fashions, following them closely and accurately in the fashioning of any garment.

In considering the purchase of a new machine this Christmas, the Wiegand firm calls your attention to the fact that liberal trade-in allowances are made on all old machines and easy-term payment plans are available.
